BERLIN IS DESPERATE AS BANKS TOTTER

CAPITAL TUTOR AND FRIEND DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Miss Sina Reuthe, 30, of Gunston Hall, Killed at Buffalo, N. Y.,

CHARLES DE THIERRY ALSO LOSES HIS LIFE

Jockey E. H. Kennedy Hurt Critically; Driver Passed Red Light, Is Claim.

Special to The Washington Post.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 12.—Miss Sina Reuthe, a teacher, 30 years old, 2400 Sixteenth street, and Charles H. De Thierry, 45 years old, 316 Fifth street southeast, both of Washington, D. C., were fatally injured and two others are dying as the result of the collision of two autmobiles in the town of West Seneca, suburb of Buffalo, early today.

The injured are Edward H. Kennedy, well-known jockey, and Charles B. Harris, 38 years old, both of Baltimore, Md.

Kennedy, who was driving the car, occupied by the quartet, has a skull fracture and internal injuries. Harris received a broken right leg and internal injuries. Both are in Emergency Hospital, this city. Surgeons hold out little hope for recovery of the jockey.

Hurts Prevent Questioning.

Condition of the injured men prevented Sheriff Charles A. Freidberg from questioning them. Medical Examiner Francis M. Kujawa is withholding a death certificate pending investigation.

Kennedy, who had just finished a riding engagement at the Fort Erie race track, and his party apparently were en route to either Washington or Baltimore when his car collided at a street intersection with a machine driven by Edward Farchman, of Gardenville, N. Y.

Farchman told Sheriff Freiberg he was driving across the intersection with the traffic signal when Kennedy's car came through the red light and crashed into his automobile.

The jockey's automobile overturned and Farchman's car was wrecked. The latter, however, escaped injury. Residents in the vicinity extricated the victims and summoned an ambulance. De Thierry died while being taken to a hospital. Miss Reuthe died four hours after arrival at the hospital without regaining consciousness. The bodies of the dead man and woman were taken to the Erie County morgue pending word from relatives.

Was Gunston Hall Teacher.

Miss Reuthe has been professor of French for the past ten years at the fashionable Gunston Hall School for girls. She came here directly after the war and began to teach French.

For the past two years she has lived at Meridian Mansions, 2400 Sixteenth street northwest. She is survived by a brother, who lives in Paris.

Boat Blaze Perils Big Excursion Ship

Sailors Lasso Crfat and Tow Her From Harbro at Provincetown.

Provincetown, Mass., July 12 (A.P.).—A drifting gasoline boat burning fiercely from bow to stern, nearly set afire the excursion ship Dorothy Bradford and seriously endangered a dozen expensive yachts in Provincetown Harbor this afternoon.

Two men aboard the gasoline boat, John Phillips, 20, and Albert Roderick, 18, were critically burned before they jumped overboard. They were picked up and taken to a hospital.

After the burning boat had drifted within 50 feet of the Dorothy Bradford, whose decks were crowded with excursionists, a motorboat crew from the destroyer Tillman risked the danger of explosion to throw a line with a noose which caught on the bow of the gas boat and then took their flaming tow out of reach of yachts in the harbor. Three Coast Guardsmen from the Wood End Station fired on her and sank her.

Keyes' 5-Year Sentence Reduced to 19 Months

San Quentin State Prison, Calif., July 12 (U.P.).—Asa Keyes, former District Attorney of Los Angeles County who was convicted on charges of accepting bribes, will be freed from this prison in about three months, the State Prison Board decided today.

The board fixed Keyes' term at five years, and decided he should be granted parole for the last two years. With good behavior, a five year sentence is reduced to three years and seven months. Therefore, with the parole he gained today, Keyes will have to serve only 19 months in San Quentin.

LAURA INGALLS, diminutive aviatrix, and her plane in which she took off from Burbank, Calif., yesterday morning on the first leg of her projected hop to Paris via New York.

Laura Ingalls' Plane and Companion Ship Are Long Overdue.

Wichita, Kans., July 12 (A.P.).—Laura Ingalls, aviatrix who left Burbank, Calif., at 5:25 a. m. (P. S. T.) on an attempted one-day flight to New York from where she plans to fly solo to Paris, had not arrived here tonight for a scheduled refueling.

Although she announced the flight was no speed attempt, Miss Ingalls said she would fly directly here to refuel and if weather conditions were favorable ,would continue to New York. She expected to land here about 2 p. m. (C. S. T.).

TILDEN BEATS RICHARDS FOR PRO NET TITLE

6,000 See Big Bill Take Finals in 3-Set Match, 7—5, 6—2, 6—1.

RICHARDS TROUNCED AFTER OPENING SET

Tilden and Hunter Defeated in Doubles by Richards and Kinsey.

By FOSTER HAILEY.

Forest Hills, N. Y., July 12 (A.P.).—William Tatem Tilden 2d, seven times amateur tennis champion of the United States, today added the professional crown to his kingly collection. He defeated the former title holder, Vincent Richards, in clear-cut and decisive fashion on the turf of Forest Hills Stadium in the finals of the fifth annual American professional tournament.

It required only three sets and 59 minutes of play for the tall man of American tennis to win from his one-time amateur rival of the courts, 7—5, 6—2, 6—1.

The match, in brief, was a contest between a master of the volley—Richards—and a master of all the strokes of tennis—Tilden.

Except for the start of the match, where Richards ran into a lead of three games to one, Tilden was the master of the situation. His service was booming across the net for frequent aces—nine in the last set alone—his forehand was a devastating weapon and his backhand, especially on cross court drives with the ball taken on the dead run, was a masterpiece of the rhythm and nearly always went for a winning point.

The legendary enmity between Tilden and his slightly portly and much smaller opponent—an offshoot from amateur days, when Richards was the only man who occasionally could beat the Philadelphian—hovered over the giant concrete stadium as Tilden ran his man mercilessly. Mixing shots that rammed into the alternate corners of the back court, with tantalizing dropshots and provocative lobs, Tilden had his man on the point of exhaustion.

Tilden, like Caesar's wife, could do no wrong today. Every stroke in his long and prolific bag he brought out and confounded the cause of his rival. Chops that fairly singed the sacred turf of the center court were followed by delicate cross-courts to

Atlantic City Visitor Kills Girl and Self

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12 (U.P.).—The bodies of Jean Powers, 21, member of a prominent family of Swarthmore, Pa., and John F. Doyle, 40, pool room proprietor of Ridley Park, Pa., were found in a room in the Embassy Hotel today. Doyle had shot himself through the heart after he had strangled the girl, police said.

The couple registered at the hotel six days ago as Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Dye. Doyle borrowed a pistol from the manager of the hotel after complaining he had been robbed of $200.

Police said the couple had been drinking heavily.

Two Girls Die, Pilot Hurt, as Plane Burns

Jonesboro, Ark., July 12 (A.P.).—Two girls were burned to death and Pilot H. E. Lawhead was critically injured as their plane burst into flames and crashed near here this afternoon.

Miss Elizabeth Osborn, 16, and Miss Ruby Hinson, about 18, both of Jonesboro, were killed. The pilot was thrown clear of the wreckage, but was badly burned.

U. S. ASSURES BERLIN OF AID FROM BANKERS

Salvation Laid to Europe, With Assistance From America Ready.

CASTLE ANNOUNCES POLICY ON SITUATION

Directors of World Bank to Meet Today in Basle to Consider Action.

(Associated Press.)

Germany's economic salvation was placed by the Hoover administration on Europe's shoulders last night with assurances of American banking cooperation in any effective plan.

Hurrying back to the capital from the President's Rapidan camp in Virginia, Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department, in a formal statement, put forward the administration's policy in the German economic crisis. He disclosed that the powerful forces of American finance were ready to take up actively the issue if their assistance were required.

"The heads of the principal European central banks, including the Bank of England and the Bank of France," he said, "are meeting tomorrow morning in Basle with the Bank of International Settlements. They will no doubt consider the German banking crisis.

"Obviously, any plan for a banking solution of the situation must originate from these banks which are on the ground and it is my understanding that our bankers are prepared to consider assistance in any effective plan of relief that they may evolve."

Confers With Claudel.

The statement was issued after the Acting Secretary conferred at the State Department with Ambassador Claudel of France. Both declined to comment on the discussion.

At the same time, Acting Secretary Mills of the Treasury, coadvisor with Castle to the President on the whole situation, asserted officially in New York that the American Government could not act in the situation. He, too, placed the responsibility of caring for Germany's plight directly up to Europe, discribing the problems involved as "fundamentally European."

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Ogden L. Mills, Acting Secretary of the Treasury, in a statement tonight, said that "through the President's debt suspension program the German government has been relieved of the critical strain due to its international governmental financial obligations.

"That is the only direction in which our Government has either the opportunity or the authority to intervene," he asserted.

Position of U. S. Clear.

The statement in full said:

"The position of the United States Government in the present phase of the German situation is clear. Through the President's debt suspension program the German government has been relieved of the critical strain due to its international governmental financial obligations. Over $400,000,000 has thus been made available for the rehabilitation of German industry and commerce during the present year instead of its payment upon reparations account. That is the only direction in which our Government has either the opportunity or the authority to intervene."

"It is, of course, well known that the Government has no control over the foreign credit policies of the Federal reserve banks and under a well-established and sound public policy they have been kept free from executive influence or interference.

"It should not be forgotten that the problems with which we are concerned today are fundamentally Eu-

Man Fatally Hurt By Hit-Run Car

Accident Occurs at Traffic Signal ust Outside of Laurel, Md.

An unidentified man between 50 and 60 years of age died in Casualty Hospital last night, victim of a hit-and-run automobile at Laurel, Md. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

The accident occurred at a traffic signal just outside Laurel on the Washington-Baltimore highway. Police last night had found no one who saw the accident.

They stopped an automobile bearing two colored men and asked them to take the man to Casualty Hospital. They reached Washington about 9:45 o'clock last night, and the two colored men, after delivering the injured man at the hospital, left without giving their names.

Hospital authorities said the accident victim was shabbily dressed and had a several days' growth of beard. They said they were unable to determine his exact age.

Britain Fears Chaos In World Economics

Financial Circles Feel Next 48 Hours May be Vitally Critical; Secrecy of Leaders Gives Rise to Many Rumors.

London, July 12 (A.P.).—Vitally critical days in the world's history were believed in Britain tonight to be immediately ahead.

It was felt particularly in financial circles that even the next 24 or 48 hours might produce developments which would finally decide whether a large section of Europe would plunge into economic chaos with all the attendant political upheavals or whether President Hoover's gesture really would bear its expected fruit.

Although outwardly the British week-end calm prevailed over the country, the realization of great events stirring was present in many quarters.

Financiers, commercial directors and many others abandoned their usual Sunday game of golf to keep in touch by telephone with representatives in Paris and Berlin and it is safe to say the day of rest of a number of officials in government offices was one in name only.

The secrecy with which Montagu Norman and other leaders of international finance were conducting their operations had a natural consequence in rumors and stories of all kinds in the press.

One important Sunday newspaper devoted its largest headline type to a report that the American Federal Reserve Bank had expressed willingness to grant the Reichsbank credit of $200,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Other Sunday papers concentrated more on the political aspects of the situation with special reference to the precarious situation of the Bruening government.

Outside of news columns, editorial writers and others attempted to give their readers some clue through the maze of past events. Although a great divergence of views naturally was expressed in their columns, there was virtual unanimity in declaring the position grave in the extreme.

Other countries besides the United

FALL ACCEPTS TERM IN HOME STATE JAIL

Takes Extra Day in Order to Serve Bribery Sentence in Suitable Climate.

El Paso, Tex., July 12 (A.P.).—A member of the family of Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, said today that the aged and ailing man, convicted of accepting a bribe while in office, had agreed to accept an amendment to a year's prison sentence so his term might be served outside the District of Columbia.

Fall, suffering from chronic tuberculosis, has declared service of his term in an Eastern prison would result in his early death. Dr. J. H. Gambrell, the former Secretary's physician here, yesterday recommended to Frank Hogan, Fall's Washington counsel, that the sentence be served in the New Mexico State Prison.

Previously, at the request of Mr. Hogan, the physician notified his patient that Justice Bailey, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, had refused to grant a suspension of sentence. In so doing, Justice Bailey suggested to Mr. Hogan that the year's sentence be modified by the addition of another day.

This action would give the Attorney General power to name the prison in which the former Cabinet member will serve time for acceptance of a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, the oil man.

Dr. Gambrell, in his telegram to Hogan, asked that the New Mexico State Prison be designated in preference to the El Paso County Jail, suggested to Justice Bailey by Atlee Pomerene, of Government counsel in the Fall trial.

The El Paso jail was said by Dr. Gambrell to be badly crowded, and had neither hospital facilities nor places where the former Cabinet member could obtain adequate fresh air and sunshine.

Since announcement of refusal of Justice Bailey to suspend sentence, Fall has had little to say. Members of the family once reputed the most prominent socially and politically in New Mexico continued to denounce those they characterized as their persecutors.

The former Interior Secretary's wife, herself broken in health by the futile nine-year fight to keep her husband from prison, was especially bitter.

The Fall family came to El Paso several months ago from their ranch near Three Fivers, N. Mex. They long maintained homes both here and in New Mexico, where Fall served as

FRANCE SAYS ARMY IS CUT TO MINIMUM

Strength of 317,000 Lowest Possible With Safety, League Is Told.

Paris, July 12 (U.P.).—A memorandum saying that the French army has been reduced to minimum compatible with security was forwarded to Geneva today in answer to a League of Nations questionnaire on disarmament. The memorandum, to be published Friday, said France's army has been cut from 810,000 men in 1913 to a present strength of 317,000.

After the close of the World War, France had already cut the army to 725,000 troops, the memorandum said, and it had been trimmed further by reducing the period of conscript service from three years to one year.

The memorandum stressed the point that the French army was purely for defensive purposes, threatening no one and constituting "only a sufficient force to guarantee security—another guarantee in favor of European peace.

"Limitation of armaments is desirable for France as well as for other nations," the memorandum went on. "France will not augment her military expenditures; on the contrary, she will do her utmost to reduce them."

France is in an unusual situation, with extensive frontiers bordering upon other strong military powers, it was emphasized. She has been subjected to two costly invasions during the last half-century.

French military chiefs are understood to be much more worried over the falling birth rate in France than over possible arms-reduction efforts at the Geneva conference.

Starting in 1935, the army of France will feel the results of wartime interruption of births. This cause will reduce the number of conscripts by nearly one-half, a situation which will continue 5½ years, until 1941. At the peak, the conscripts will decline in number from the normal 240,000 to 140,000, or perhaps even less.

Andre Maginot, minister of war, in anticipation of this reduction, has instructed the general staff to draft a new organization to insure maintenance of the army at full strength during the critical six-year period.

It was considered likely that the staff will decide to enlist volunteers for five-year enlistments rather than adopt the expedient of lengthening the duration of the conscript's service.

CABINET FAILS TO ADOPT PLAN TO END CRISIS

Financiers Anxious as All-Night Session Is Unproductive.

EMERGENCY DECREE IS ALREADY DRAFTED

Propose to Make Single House Responsible for Curbing Capital.

Berlin, July 13 (Monday) (A.P.).—The Darmstaedter und Nationad Bank, with a capital of approximately $30,000,000, announced at 2:35 this morning that it would be compelled to close its doors today.

The announcement came after a stormy all-night session of the German cabinet at which it was understood that banks opposed an emergency decree placing it under Federal control.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin (Monday), July 13 (A.P.).—Technical questions over the legality of a proviso designed to prevent the outflow of foreign exchange held the German cabinet undecided for hours last night and early today and prevented the issuance of an emergency decree which was intended to stave off financial collapse.

It was understood the decree was all ready for promulgation and was to have contained provision for placing one of the largest banks in Germany under direct federal control, with a moratorium on its obligations, and for the appointment of a "commissioner of devisen" with extraordinary powers, to control the traffic in foreign currency.

The first measure was intended to forestall disastrous bankruptcies in Germany and the second to halt a run on foreign currencies which reached catastrophic proportions on Saturday.

Although the decree, as drafted, did not mention any bank specifically, it is known that the Darmstaedter und Nationalbank, one of the five largest in Germany, was primarily in mind, although it was believed the government intended to extend its control to the Reinische Laenderbank also.

Argue Well Into Morning.

The cabinet, which had been virtually in continuous session since 11 a. m. yesterday, sought the opinion of legal experts and the experts expressed doubts about the section governing the appointment of a commissioner of devisen. They pronounced the sections relating to measures for taking over distressed banks legal, however.

Newspaper men were given to understand that the decree would be ready for release at 10 p. m., but the cabinet battle continued until 3:20 a. m., when it adjourned.

A group of bankers, including some of the leading financiers of Germany, also held a session throughout the day and formulated proposals intended to aid the government in reaching a solution.

They all worked against time, doubtful about what might happen.

All questions of long-term credits from America and the renewal of the discount credit of approximately $225,000,000, which is due next Thursday, were relegated to the background. The problem of immediate importance was the possible financial collapse of Germany today and this was necessarily nearest to the hearts of the members of the cabinet and the financiers.

Seek Curb on Gold Flow.

To stop the outflow of gold and foreign exchange, the government referred to a measure which was employed in 1923, when a somewhat similar situation led to the appointment of Hjalmar Schacht as commissar of devisen.

As such, r. Schacht was armed with extraordinary powers to regu-

2 NEW YORK FLIERS ARE OFF FOR MEXICO

Plane Believed to Be That of Young Pair Passes Over Greensboro, N. C.

Atlanta, Ga., July 12 (A.P.).—The Eastern Air Transport, Inc., here, reported tonight that a plane believed to be that of Seth Yerrington and Edward Maloney, bound from New York to Mexico City, passed over Greensboro, N. C., at 8:25 p. m., Eastern standard time.

Richmond, Va., July 12 (A.P.).—A black Stinson monoplane, believed to be that of Seth Yerrington and Edward Maloney, flying from New oYrk to Mexico City, passed over here at 7:20 p. m., Eastern standard time.

Officials of the Richmond Air Transport Co. said they were unable to read license numbers on the ship, which appeared from the North, circled Byrd Airport once at a height of approximately 1,500 feet and headed southward.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 12 (A. P.).—Seth Yerington and Edward Maloney, young Oyster Bay, N. Y., aviators, flying the monoplane Captain Carranza, hopped off at 4:35 p. m. (Eastern standard time) today on a projected round-trip flight to Mexico City, without intermediate stops.

Yerington and Maloney began their flight on the third anniversary of the death of Emilio Carranza, Mexican ace, to whose memory a monument was unveiled today at Mount Holly, N. J., where his plane dashed.

The fliers dashed down the runway more than 2,000 yards and made a perfect take-off.

The plane, a Stinson make with a

PARIS-TOKYO PLANE SEEN OVER MOSCOW

French Fliers Clip Hour Off Schedule for Nonstop 6,000-Mile Trip.

Paris, July 12 (A.P.).—The French aviators, Joseph Lebrix and Marcel Doret, with their mechanic, Rene Mesin, passed over Moscow at 6:30 p. m. Moscow time (11 a. m. E. S. T.), today in their airplane "Hyphen," en route to Tokye, according to word which reached here after 9 o'clock tonight.

The news was immediately flashed on electric signboards in the central boulevards and a great shout went up from the Parisian throngs who were celebrating the eve of the second day's anniversary of the fall of the Bastille, one of France's most important holidays.

It was the first news of the fliers which had reached here since they were reported over Belgium at 6 a. m., a little over an hour after they took off from Le Bourget airdrome.

The news indicated the fliers were making slightly better time than their origina schedule plans. Their plans called for a flight of 12½ hours to Moscow and, allowing for the difference between Paris time and Moscow time, they were nearly an hour ahead of their schedule.

The fliers left Le Bouget at 4:43 this morning. They hoped to reach Tokyo in 62 hours, flying directly across Russia.

The schedule called for reaching Moscow in 12½ hours, Chita in 41 hours, Mukaen in 52½ hours and Tokyo in less than 10 hours more. If this schedule were maintained it would mean the breaking of the world record for a nonstop, straight-line distance flight.

Two Men Burned as Airship Mayflower Is Destroyed

Craft, Moored in Kansas City, Is Blown Into High-Tension Wires After Weathering First Storm; Two of Crew Escape Serious Injuries.

Kansas City, July 12 (A.P.).—At least wo persons, the pilot and copilot, were burned today when the Goodyear-Zeppelin airship Mayflower, of Akron, Ohio, was destroyed after being blown by a wind and rainstorm into high tension electric wires at the Kansas City Airport.

Capt. C. E. Brannigan, 35, Akron, Ohio, the pilot, was dangerously burned and physicians said he might not live.

R. H. Hobenfack, co-pilot, was less seriously burned.

Hobenfack said the airship, moored at the port, weathered the first storm shortly after 6:30 o'clock but was blown into the wires by a second gust of wind and rain.

Hobenfack said he thought the gondola of the shpi crashed into a hangar, breaking the gasoline tanks and that the fuel ignited when the ship was blown into the wires.

Ray Horton and Claude Hendershot, other members of the crew, escaped serious injuries. No passengers were aboard at the time.

Horton, clinging to the handrail preparing to descend as the wind swept the airship into the wires, was thrown against the ship and then to the ground. He was bruised.

Hendershot leaped from the ship and was treated for bruises.

Two Pilots Killed When Plane Burns

Ship Crashes at High Speed Into Ground at Airport in Chicago.

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Chester Bales, 32, of Kansas City, and William Warren, 22, of San Antonio, Tex., both pilots, were burned to death today when a plane in which they were riding crashed at the municipal airport.

Bales and Warren were to have returned the plane to Detroit today. Bales was a Braniff pilot, while Warren was employed by Century Airlines, Inc.

Airport attaches, who saw the crash, said it was apparently caused by a motor failure. They said Bales had gotten the ship about 700 feet when the motor quit, and that he tried to bank and return to the field, but had neither speed nor altitude sufficient. As the plane turned, it slid off to the right and crashed at high speed into the ground. There was a terrific explosion, followed by fire, which made rescue impossible.

3 Pedestrians 'Put on Spot,' But Shots Fail to Hit Mark

Two Men and Blonde Young Woman Made Threats and Fired Several Times, Intended Victims Say; Chase by Police Futile.

Three early morning pedestrians near Union Station experienced much of the sensation of being put "on the spot" yesterday although they received none of the injuries usually suffered by "spot" victims.

The pedestrians, Michael Donahue, 730 East Capitol street; Arthur Greenberg, 4 Eighth street southeast, and Paul Nicholas, 1231 C street southeast, told police a car containing two men and a young woman—a blonde with bobbed hair—followed them for several blocks along Massachusetts avenue northeast. Near the Union Station plaza, the men said, the occupants of the car addressed them in threatening terms and shortly afterward fired several shots at them.

A First Precinct police car heard the shots and pursued the "gunmen's" car through the northeast section of the city to the District line, where the chase was abandoned. The "spot" victims said they believed both of the men were armed with pistols. License tags on the car indicated it was the property of a man living on Meridian street northwest, near Fourteenth, but police had not been able to get in touch with him up to late yesterday afternoon.

A lookout was sent over the police radio system for the car and police of nearby counties were asked to aid the search.

late the inflow and outflow of foreign exchange. All foreign currencies coming into Germany in payment for German exports had to be delivered to his ooffice. In return, he supplied German importers with foreign exchange needed to meet their payments abroad. By this means the government was able to restrict the purchase of foreing currencies to the limit of absolute necessity.

Although the government'es attention was almost entirely centered yesterday upon the presing problem of today, its thoughts and prayer at the same time went across the sea to President Hoover. The questions in the government's mind were whether President Hoover would once again rally to Germany's aid, and whether he would be able to arrange the sorely needed long-term credits after today's emergency is met, without the necessity of Germany's giving up the political independence to which she clings.

French Aid is Urged.

Paris, July 12 (U.P.).—The German Ambassador to Paris, Dr. Leopold Von Hoesch, pleaded tonight for French aid to save his country from its worst situation since the World War, and warned premier Pierre Laval that grave consequences might result from continued refusal to lend Germany financial aid.

The premier sped to Paris from his country estate after an urgent call to meet Von Hoesch. The statesmen conferred for half an hour, and Laval appeared deeply impressed by the German statement.

Berlin, July 12 (U.P.).—Amid the greatest suspense this country has experienced since the war, the German cabinet tonight considered drastic measure to prevent runs on banks that would further weaken the tottering Reichsbank. Pending further negotiations for a foreign loan of $300,000,000, needed within 48 hours to stave off collapse of the nation's financial structure, it was decided to close the Berlin Stock Exchange on Monday and Tuesday.

The plan to declare a moratorium on all private debts, which would be equal to declaring Germany bankrupt, came up at a cabinet meeting this morning, but tonight it was said that this plan had been shelved temporarily.

Seek to Nip Stock Collapse.

Directors of the stock exchange decided on a 48-hour suspension of trading to avert collapse of stock prices.

The cabinet, which had adjourned its sessions pending receipt of a report from the government reparations commission, resumed its deliberations tonight. It was endeavoring to evolve measures which would serve to give armor to the government and the Reichsbank in their credit negotiations with the United States, Great Britain and France.

Dr. Hans Luther, Reichsbank president, who had just completed a flying visit to London and Paris in search of credits of $200,000,000 which apparently were unavailable save at a price the government is not prepared to pay, political concessions including abandonment of the Austro-German economic union project and construction of the second vest-pocket battleship, remained in Berlin. He was expected, however, to proceed to Basel to lay before the Bank of International Settlements his government's requirements in hope that a last-minute grant of direly needed funds would be made.

Sackett Kept Busy.

American Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett worked at the Embassy until 8 a. m. today. Then he rested a few hours, only to rise and resume work this afternoon.

He conferred with Dr. B. W. Von Bulow, state secretary in the foreign ministry. At the same time the Embassy was understood to be communicating with State Department at Washington.

News from Washington, indicating that President Hoover could not exert pressure upon the Federal Reserve Moard to grant a huge loan to Germany unless there were collaboration from the French, depressed hopes of the cabinet that there might be independent American action relieving the need for funds

Berlin remained in a state of suppressed excitement throughout the day, despite the outward Sunday calm.

Conferences of government and financial leaders took place at various points in the city and telephones were kept busy. Anxiety of the leaders was reflected among the general public, as citizens gathered in small groups on street corners to discuss the crisis in terms of their own private fortunes.

The cabinet was understood to have three proposals under discussion:

1. A project for issuing a new dramatic government proclamation of the present dilema as a means of stirring world attention.
2. An ordinance for control of dealings in foreign exchange.
3. An emergency decree which would enable the Reich to assume a guarantee of German private banks, in return for the banks' concession of a certain government control.

The third proposal was understood to be designed to aid several large financial institutions, two of which were reported to be already in grave financial difficulties.

Warn of Danger.

Paris, July 12 (A.P.).—Holiday-making Paris kept a weather eye on the German situation today.

Nationalist organs, such as Liberte, warned of the danger attendant upon the Reich's collapse and blamed Germany's attitude in past years for its present ills.

The conservative and officially inspired Temps gathered the impression that "Berlin is in the grip of a sort of collective folly and nervous excitement which prevents taking into account the realities of the moment."

Le Temps hoped that counsels of prudence would be forthcoming from Washington, London and Paris to ward off a catastrophe.

The liberal Le Soir considers the Reich's financial foundering almost inevitable, saying Germany, on the brink of the abyss, should look to an economic, pacific reorganization of Europe "which alone will satisfy us—and her at the same time."

Winds Balk Candlers In Record Air Attempt

Atlanta, Ga., July 12 (U.P.).—Blocked by headwinds from setting a new West-East transcontinental air record, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Candler, jr., and Beeler Blevins, their pilot, landed at Candler Airport here at 11:08 today, after being forced to stop in Dallas, Tex., last night.

Taking off from Los Angeles early yesterday morning in their Lock-Heedorion monoplane, the Candlers were able to average only 140 miles an hour to El Paso, where they were forced to land.

Hoover Without Phone 3 Hours Due to Storm

Luray, Va., July 12 (A.P.).—For three hours late Saturday afternoon, the three highest executives now in the United States were entirely shutoff from communication with the outside world.

At that time the Atlantic cables were crackling with developments relating to the German economic situation, in which at least two of the trio were directly interested.

The executives were President Hoover, Vice President Curtis and Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department, ranking officer ranking department in the absence from the country of Secretary Stimson.

While resting at the presidential lodge in the mountains near here, an electric storm disrupted all wire service, including the President's special telephone connection with the White House.

HOOVER TO RETURN TODAY FROM CAMP

Said to Have Received No Official News During Day From Germany.

Luray, Va., July 12 (A.P.).—President Hoover today postponed until Monday his return to Washington from his Rapidan summer camp to enjoy the cool weather that favored his week-end excursion.

A lengthy conference with Vice President Curtis occupied part of the Chief Executive's day. Despite disquieting reports of financial conditions in Germany, the President was said to have received no official communications from the embassy in Berlin.

Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department also was at the camp.

Mrs. Hoover, accompanied by several of her guests, tramped for an hour through the mountainous country surrounding the Rapidan River, but the President remained at the camp with the Vice President.

In response to a telephoned query, Mr. Hoover was informed that Mrs Frank Connor, wife of a Washington newspaperman, injured Friday when the car in which she was riding with the presidential party overturned, was resting comfortably in a Washington hospital. She suffered a broken collar bone and severe shock.

Despite heavy rains Saturday afternoon, a number of the guests at the presidential camp rode horseback, one of the most popular diversions of those who visit the presidential retreat.

ropean problems and can best be solved through the initiative and concerted action of those who are closest to the situation."

At his New YYork home Mr. Mills declined to amplify his statement.

It was learned that he had been in conference during the day with Gov. George L. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, and planned to return to Washington on a late night train.

Leaders Are Silent.

Basel, Switzerland, July 12 (A.P.). Germany's grave financial plight brought the chiefs of big central banks into consultation here today on the eve of the monthly meeting of directors of the World Bank for International Settlements.

At the conclusion of a protracted discussion between Gates W. McGarrah, American president of the bank; Leon Fraser, director, and English French, Italian, Belgian and Japanese banking heads with Dr. Vocke, spokesman for Dr. Hans Luther, the bankers maintained their silence.

It is understood they reviewed various possible measures designed to meet Germany's need for credit and to halt the flight of sapital from the Reich.

Tomorrow, with a full attendance of directors, excepting possibly Dr. Luther, president of the Reichsbank, who had not arrived today, the burning question of Germany's financial situation will be taken up formally in some hope that conservative remedial action may be agreed upon.

The atmosphere around the World Bank headquarters tonight reflected the deep anxiety throughout the world for the fate of the Reichsbank. The news which Herr Vocke brought of heavy withdrawals of foreign exchange in Germany yesterday increased the feeling that the situation was menacing It was recognized that prompt action is necessary if Germany is to be saved from economic disaster before the Hoover debt plan can be put into effect.

The bank's directors will consider the question of France's guarantee fund and how it is to be paid. This is likely to prove a difficult matter, as France desires the World Bank to approve payment in monthly installments, while in other quarters it is argued the bank is only a trustee and has not the right to approve or disapprove any proposed methods of carrying the moratorium into effect.

HEART ATTACK KILLS PRIMATE OF SWEDEN

Dr. Soederblom and Kellogg Received Nobel Peace Prize Same Day.

Stockholm, July 12 (A.P.).—Archbishop Nathan Soederblom, Archbishop of Sweden and winner of the Nobel peace prize for 1930, died today from a heart attack.

Dr. Soederblom, who was 65 years old, received the peace award at Oslo December 10, last year—the same day Frank B. Kellogg, former American Secretary of State, received a similar prize for 1929.

A leader of the Lutheran Church, Dr. Soederblom became a world personality for his efforts to unify the churches in the struggle for universal peace.

When the Nobel peace prizes for 1930 and 1929 were awarded last December, Premier Mowinckel contrasted Frank B. Kellogg, the 1929 winner, "the man of practical politics," with Archbishop Soederblom, "a man of the church and a spiritual warrior."

Long active in the cause of world peace, Dr. Soederblom was the principal organizer of the Christian Unity Conference in Stockholm five years ago.

In 1923 he visited the United States under the auspices of the World Alliance for Promoting International Friendship, lecturing at Harvard, Yale and other universities.

At Geneva in 1926 he warned the League of Nations that if it would live its members must refrain from attempts to satisfy their own political ambitions and realize that the league must be made an instrument for the operation of divine justice.

He also was a member in 1927 of the world conference on faith and order at Lausanne, appointed to draft a report finding unanimity on six questions affecting church doctrine.

The archbishop was born in the Province of Helsingland, Sweden, January 15, 1866. From 1894 until 1901 he was rector of the Swedish Church in Paris.

While his great aim had been for world pacification, his other interests were extensive.

Prochancellor of the University of Upsala, Sweden's most ancient institution of learning, he studied prodigiously, mastering ten languages, and wrote prolifically on theology, including studies of the origins of religions, religious history, Indian modes of worship and many other matters.

He had been professor of comparative theology at the University of Leipzig, held the chair of comparative history at the University of Upsala and was said to be the only foreigner ever made a doctor of theology by the University of Paris. He also was a member of the Swedish Academy.

Treasury Seeks Bill Issue Bids

$50,000,000 Sale Is Set for Wednesday; Mature on October 15.

(Associated Press.)

Acting Secretary Mills yesterday invited tenders for $50,000,000 of Treasury bills which will be sold to the highest bidders Wednesday.

The bills will be dated July 17 and will mature on October 15. The issuance of the bills, which will be sold on a discount basis and redeemed at par brings to $151,000,000 the amount of securities sold by the Treasury since the opening of the fiscal year July 1.

The money to be raised will be used to retire $50,000,000 in Treasury bills which mature on July 15. Another block totaling $100,000,000 matures on July 27. The issuance of the bills brings to a total of $444,000,000 of that variety of securities now outstanding.

Mussolini Takes Stimsons For Ride in His Motor Boat

Duce Treats Secretary First and Then Wife; Handles Craft Skillfully; U. S. Official Will Leave for Paris Tomorrow.

Nettuno, Italy, July 12 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini came flashing in from mier Mussolini came ashing in from the sea today, driving his own motorboat, and took Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Mrs. Stimson for a fast ride along the coast.

The duce arrived at 5:30 p. m. from Fussmo Castle, 15 miles up the coast, where he often goes. He was heralded by telephone and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, in a motorboat, went out to meet him, escorting him to the private dock of San Gallo Castle, here, where the Stimsons, John W. Garrett, the American Ambassador, and Mrs. Garrett were spending the week-end with the foreign minister and Senora Grandi.

The duce came merely to pay a courtesy visit to the Secretary of State.

In fine humor, he invited Secretary Stimson to have a ride and took him out for a dashing fifteen minutes in the big racing craft which Musolini handles with the same speed and daring he does his fast motor car.

The duce then returned and took Mrs. Stimson for a similar ride. He begged to be excused after this half hour's visit because he had much work awaiting him, and drove off again up the coast to Fusano Castle.

Secretary Stimson will return tomorrow to Rome, where he will meet the three ambassadors of the capitals he intends visiting on his present trip—the German, French and British.

According to present plans, Mr. and Mrs. Stimson will leave by train Tuesday for Paris, where the Secretary must be Wednesday afternoon.

FALL TO SERVE TERM IN HOME STATE JAIL

senator before his appointment to the Harding Cabinet.

(Associated Press.)

Reported acceptance by Albert B. Fall of a change in his sentences leaves only a perfunctory move or two to finish the story of his failure to escape prison.

Justice Bailey, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, is expected today to add a day to the former Secretary of the Interior's sentence of a year and to order that he go to prison immediately

Department of Justice officials have expressed the opinion that any suitable jail or penitentiary may be chosen and it is possible that the former Cabinet officer may go to the New Mexico Penitentiary, although the El Paso, Tex., Jail also has been suggested.

May Serve But 4 Months.

The department has said also that changing the sentence would not deprive Fall of citizenship privileges. He will be eligible for parole in four months.

Fall was convicted by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme Court in October, 1929, sentenced to a year in the District jail and fined $100,000.

He appealed to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. His conviction was sustained. The case next went to the Supreme Court, but it refused to review the case. Mr. Hogan followed this by a motion to suspend the prison sentence because of the latter's ill health. This also was unsuccessful.

Chain-Store Man Is Shot to Death

Search in Connecticut Is State-Wide in Killing at Windsor.

Windsor, Conn., July 12 (A.P.).—While Couny Detective Edward J. Hickey was conducting an investigation here today into the slaying of Joseph Boulanger, manager of a chain grocery store, a stabbing affair took place in another section of the town which may prove fatal to Nicholas Chirrizzio.

Medical Examiner Glover E. Howe, of Hartford today performed an autopsy on the body of Boulanger, who was slain late last night after leaving his store while police throughout the State conducted a search for his assailant.

The autopsy disclosed two bullet wounds, one of which pierced the heart and liver, the slug lodging close to the flesh on the right side. The other pierced his right hand.

A crowd witnessed the slaying on the Main street of this town.

panied by two mechanics in an escort plane. They were reported over Albuquerque, N. Mex., at 2:15 p. m. (C. S. T.) Further checks with airports along the route have failed to locate the ships.

Storms were reported along the route and airport attaches here believed the planes have halted elsewhere for the night.

Burbank, Calif., July 12 (A.P.).—Laura Ingalls, diminutive aviatrix, winged eastward from the United Airport here at 5:25 a. m. (Pacific standard time) today, hoping to be the first woman to make a solo flight over the Great Circle route from New York to Paris.

The take-off, originally set for 3 a. m., was delayed by fog. She expected to land at Wichita, Kans., for refueling at 2 p. m., Central standard time, and said she probably would take-off at once for New York, although if delays occur or flying conditions are bad, she may spend the night at Wichita.

"I am seeking no transcontinental record," she said. "I will conserve myself and my plane on my flight to New York, with every thought centered in the transatlantic flight. I want to take off from Roosevelt Field as soon as weather conditions permit."

Her Lockheed airplane was followed by a Gypsy Moth bearing two mechanics who will condition her ship for the ocean flight. The Lockheed has a gasoline capacity of 671 gallons, but it left Burbank with but 300 gallons.

Miss Ingalls' plans were made after an accident halted the Paris solo flight attempt of Ruth Nichols, leaving Miss Ingalls the only woman flier with transat'antic intentions.

Dismissal of Pantages Charges Will Be Asked

425-horsepower Wasp motor, disappeared within a few minutes.

It carried 575 gallons of gasoline in five tanks, three in the fuselage and one in each wing, and in 24 small cans holding 2½ gallons each.

Mrs. Dorothy Maloney, whose secret marriage to Maloney about three months ago was revealed only last week, witnessed the tak-off. She had been with the pilots at the field daily driving an automobile on errands and helping them prepare for the flight.

Mrs. Anne Adams Yerrington was not at the field. She is visiting an aunt in Connecticut.

The pilts said they expected to reach Mexico City in 20 to 22 hours, flying by way of Atlanta, Ga., and New Orleans, and then skirting the Gulf of Mexico to Tampico Pass, where they said they would climb to an altitude of 10,300 fet to get over the mountain before reaching the Mexican Capital. They charted an air line course of about 2,300 miles to Mexico City, where the expected to rest for twelve hours before starting on the return flight.

Maloney, who is 23, holds a transport license. Yerrington, who is 26, says he has been flying since 1924, but does not hold a transport license.

The Capitan Carranza has a temporary license, a switch in motors from a 220-horse-power plant to the 325-horse-power Wasp having necessitated a new application.

The plane, which is painted black, carried no radio. This will be its second visit to Mexico City. It was purchased there last year by Clifford McMillan, who attempted a nonstop flight to New oYrk, but was forced down.

If the flight is successful, Maloney and Yerrington hope to prepare their plane here for an attempt to cross the Atlantic.

BRITAIN IS FEARFUL OF ECONOMIC CHAOS

States, Germany and France have drawn a measure of British attention.

Advices from Brussels indicated there was a possibility Belgium would refuse the invitation to send representatives to the experts conference in London opening next Friday. It was stated today in Belgium official circles that preliminary pourparlers between Brussels and Washington have given so little satisfaction to the European state regarding what she considers her imprescriptible right to reparations that her representation at London would be practically useless. The question, however, will be decided finally at the meeting of the cabinet tomorrow.

On the other hand, Belgrade advices indicated that Jugoslavia was most anxious to attend the London conference and is annoyed and offended that she was not invited. An official statement in the newspaper Vreme today reiterated the government's absolute refusal to admit the validity of any decision reached at London without reference to Jugoslavia and to her detriment.

Hoover Dam Perfectly Safe, Reclamation Engineer Avers

Harper Declares Criticism Brands Gerry as "Man Poorly Informed" of Facts Concerning $165,000,000 Colorado River Project.

Denver, Colo., July 12 (A.P.).—Criticism of the design of the Hoover Dam made by M. H. Gerry, jr., San Francisco consulting engineer, "appears to be that of a man poorly informed and without many of the facts concerning its construction at his command," S. C. Harper, of Denver, assistant chief engineer of the Federal Reclamation Service, said today.

"The design of the Hoover Dam is perfectly safe," Harper said. "Mr. Gerry's criticism would not be deserving an answer if it had not appeared in the Civil Engineering Magazine, official publication of the American Society of Civil Engineers." The criticism was printed in the current number of the magazine.

Harper pointed out that Gerry's criticism is based on two main contentions, the first being that the rock on which the dam is built is not a safe foundation for a structure of the type designed.

Contends Foundation Is Firm.

"A technical answer to Mr. Gerry would have to be made in a technical publication," Harper said, "but so far as the general public is concerned, it might be well to point out that the sides of the canyon in which the dam will be constructed are nearly vertical and have been so for millions of years.

He said that if the rock were not of the kind to afford a good foundation for the dam, it would have weathered away, leaving a canyon of sloping walls. It also might be pointed out, he said, that core drillings have been taken from the rock on which the dam will rest and have been submitted to the most exhaustive tests.

"Mr. Gerry is not a geologist," said Harper, "but some of the most eminent and conservative geologists in the country have examined the foundation rock and made tests. Among those of reputation are Prof. F. L. Ransome, Pasadena, Calif., and Charles W. Barker and W. J. Mead, of the Colorado River board, a group of consulting experts. They have expressed the belief the rock will make the finest kind of foundation for the dam."

Claims Provision for Drainage.

Gerry's second contention was a criticism of the dam itself. He states that a cross section shows it to be similar to the St. Francis Dam, which went out in California several years ago, and claims that no one knows how much additional strength is needed.

"The cross section may be similar to the St. Francis Dam," Harper explained, "so far as contour is concerned, but that dam had no provision for drainage as the Hoover Dam has.

"The Reclamation Service," he said, "has not built a dam without drainage facilities for years. The drainage system consists of a series of holes down through the dam. These take up the water which seeps under the dam and excites the upward pressure.

"The water rises in these holes and then is carried off by other vents leading to the face of the dam on the downstream."

Service Record Defended.

Harper declared the Reclamation Service had had more experience in building dams than any other organization in the world, and that none of those previously constructed had ever gone out.

"We believe," he said, "that we know something of the uplift pressure regarding which Gerry speaks. The Reclamation Service also, we believe, has, through its many experiments, answered the question of how much additional strength a dam is given by making it of the arched design."

Harper said further, in commenting upon Gerry's article, that if $5,000,000 would make the dam safe, providing it was not already so, there would be no hesitation in spending that sum, since the entire project would cost approximately $165,000,000, of which $75,000,000 will be for the dam proper.

WORLD TRADE DATA HELD FALSE BY HALL

Ousted Commerce Employe Accuses Department of Withholding Facts.

(Associated Press.)

Suppression of facts and falsification of figures used in computing the "Balance of International Payments," issued a week ago by the Commerce Department, was charged yesterday by Dr. Ray O. Hall, former department official, in a letter to Secretary Lamont.

He accused the department of suppressing facts showing the United States alternately inflating and deflating the world. Statements as to prohibition's effect on tourist travel to Canada and the influence of the Smoot-Hawley tariff on merchandise imports also were suppressed, he asserted.

Hall until a month ago was assistant chief of the department's division of finance and investment. His principal duty was preparing the economic study of international trade and computing intangible as well as tangible items that go into it. He was discharged after a heated dispute with Dr. Grosvenor M. Jones, head of the division and other department economists over valuation of imports.

Letter Delivered at Rapidan.

Making public his letter last night, Hall said it was delivered to Secretary Lamont at the President's Rapidan camp, where Lamont and Assistant Secretary Klein are spending the week-end.

Hall sought to show in the study that imports for 1930 were overvalued $175,000,000. Jones and other economists held Hall's statistics would not be accurate because the figures were obtained direct from customs house records.

Asserting the prime purpose of a balance of payments is to correct and interpret "our admittedly crude customs statistics," Hall said all recent balance of payments studies had carried various corrective items. He pointed to these as "impunging" customs statistics, which, he said, was the reason given by department chiefs for refusing to use his correction.

Capital Export Held Exaggerated.

The estimate of $733,000,000 for net export of capital during 1930 was attacked as being "greatly exaggerated." The figure, he said, "would be $427,000,000 more than in 1929. But our net gold inflow in 1930 was $158,000,000 more than 1929. The printed report does not explain why we received so much more gold from foreigners in a year when, according to those who edited and changed the report, we gave foreigners so much more credit.

Adverting to recent speeches in which department officials have touched on American international banking, Mr. Hall said the "truth of the matter, in the view of scientific economic opinion, is that for years we have alternately inflated and deated the capital-importing nations to the immense detriment of ourselves and them."

Referring to the references to prohibition and the tariff, which he said were omitted, Hall wrote:

"These are petty deletions; but they are further evidence of the readiness to deceive which, elsewhere, was so ruinous."

UNION LABOR CHIEFS WILL DISCUSS COAL

Lewis and Others Due Today to Talk Over Situation With Doak and Lamont.

(Associated Press.)

Labor today will lay before the administration its view as to what can be done to solve the situation confronting the bituminous coal industry.

Called together by Secretary Doak, of the Labor Department, John L. Lewis and a group of workers are to confer with Secretary Doak and Secretary Lamont, of the Commerce Department.

Nothing of the definite subjects to be brought up has been made public. It is known, however, that general conditions, as viewed by labor, will be talked over.

Mr. Lewis several weeks ago asked President Hoover to call a general conference on economic conditions in the coal industry. The President turned over to Secretaries Lamont and Doak the problem of trying to find some common ground for a conference participated in by the operators, labor and other elements interested in the industry.

Last Thursday a group of operators met in Secretary Lamont's office and told the Commerce Secretary and Secretary Doak they believed little could be accomplished at a conference participated in by the operators and labor.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

SHORT DETOURS MAR FEW VIRGINIA ROADS

Most Highways Good, but Construction Spots Are Rough and Dusty.

Richmond, Va., July 12 (A.P.).—The Virginia Department of Highways today reported that the general condition of roads in the State is good, with the exception of short sections of construction and resurfacing, some of which are rough and dusty and others slightly muddy.

On the Richmond-Danville road through Amelia, Burkeville, Keysville and Halifax, two sections are rough and dusty in dry weather, just east of Amelia and between Amelia and Burkeville. With the exception of these places the road to Danville is in good condition.

U. S. Route 1, from Richmond to Washington, is in good condition. Widening of the remaining section between Richmond and Ashland is to be started soon, but traffic will use the regular road without trouble. In Alexandria several short street detours are to be in use for a week on account of construction on Mount Vernon boulevard.

Between Richmond and Petersburg on the same route the widening work is completed to a point just outside of Petersburg. No trouble is being experienced, but traffic is cautioned to watch for warning signs on the road where several short sections have now been widened.

Work Going On in Valley.

Through the Shenandoah Valley, route U. S. 11 has several sections of reconstruction under way between Winchester and Staunton. They are rough for about a half mile in each case. From Staunton to Lexington and Natural Bridge is in good condition. Between Natural Bridge and Roanoke the road is torn up for about a mile and a half by construction, but it is passable in dry weather without trouble. In case of rain it is necessary to close the work and send all traffic by Lynchburg.

Between Roanoke and Bristol are several short sections of bridge construction and two places of about a mile each that are bumpy and dusty, but passable without trouble.

Route 13 from Richmond to Tappahannock is in good condition. Route 13 west of Richmond is the advisable route to Farmville and Lynchburg on account of a rough section on U. S. 60 between Amelia and Burkeville.

Route 39, from Richmond to Ashland, Mineral, Charlottesville and Waynesboro is good. Between Waynesboro and Staunton two sections of approximately one-half mile each are rough and dusty in dry weather but passable without trouble.

Route 41 Excellent.

The Broad street road, route 41, from Richmond to Charlottesville, is paved from Richmond to five miles west of Ollville, a distance of about 30 miles, and good gravel from that point to route 39 near Charlottesville, about 40 miles.

From Petersburg through Waverly, Wakefield and Windsor to Suffolk route 52 is hard surfaced. This is the new road down the Norfolk & Western tracks from Petersburg to Suffolk.

From Virginia Beach to Ocean View, United States route 60, is closed. Traffic is detoured by way of United States route 117 and six miles of good county road to Lynhaven Inlet, or by Norfolk. From Newport News to Richmond is good.

Construction has started on route 600 between Covington and Hot Springs and in wet weather it is advisable to use other routes or chains.

DEPUTY'S LIFE SAVED WHEN PISTOL FAILS

Gun in Magarity's Face Is Defective as Officers Arrest Suspects.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity of Fairfax county narrowly escaped death while attempting to arrest a colored man at the Bull Run dance hall early yesterday.

Sheriff E. P. Kirby and Magarity had gone to the dance hall to arrest Curtis McLaughlin, colored, wanted on a charge of shooting a colored woman in 1930 at Fairfax. On entering the hall, Kirby stated, they saw two men fighting. Magarity caught one man, who resisted arrest, and, breaking the deputy's hold, ran. As he went through the door he drew a gun, turned and pulled the trigger twice. The gun, in Magarity's face, failed to go off. The colored man ran to a car in an attempt to escape, but Magarity caught him and took the gun from him.

As he was attempting to pull the man from the car, an unidentified colored man slipped up behind and hit Magarity over the head with a bottle.

Meanwhile Sheriff Kirby captured the man he sought and went to Magarity's assistance.

They brought their prisoners to the Fairfax county jail, where the man who had attempted to shoot Magarity gave his name as Arvin Harris, of Prince William county. Yesterday the Prince William county police notified Sheriff Kirby they had a warrant for McLaughlin charging him with shooting a man at Thoroughfare, Va., last week. Little interest is being displayed in the Democratic primary to be held August 4, three weeks from tomorrow, as the only one in the race from this city, J. Fred Birrell, incumbent in the house of delegates, has no opposition for reelection.

The two candidates for the State County, and John W. Kust, of senate, Charles T. Jesse, of Arlington County, and John W. Rust, of Fairfax County, are causing more interest in these sections, but their campaigns within Alexandria have been conducted with such decided apathy that the nearness of an election is causing less interest than has been manifested for years.

Baptist Church in Virginia Observes 150th Birthday

Many Attend All-Day Celebration at Preddys Creek; Former Pastors Are Present and Tell of History and Congregation's Progress Since 1781.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 12.—Preddys Creek Baptist Church, this county, one of the oldest in this section of Virginia, observed its 150th anniversary today. Many from all sections of piedmont Virginia attended the celebration, which was in the nature of a home-coming and lasted all day.

In the morning the Rev. J. L. Wiley, of Crozet, former pastor, delivered an address on "The Church as An Asset to the Community." A brief history of the church was given by the Rev. E. T. Cox, the present pastor, who is also pastor of the Gordonsville and Barboursville Baptist Churches. Mr. Cox also delivered a sermon on "The Church as a Divine Institution."

The principal speaker in the afternoon was Dr. Henry Alford Porter, pastor of the First Baptist Church, this city, who came to Charlottesville.

Preddys Creek Church was organized in 1781 chiefly from members of the Blue Run Baptist Church, about 2 miles north of Barboursville, in Orange County, the Blue Run Church being one of the oldest churches in the piedmont section of Virginia, having been organized in 1769.

Preddys Creek in the early days of its history increased fast in membership and until recent years has had unusually large membership for a country church.

Thomas Jefferson and James Madison with some frequency attended services there, the latter's brother, Gen. Madison, having been a Baptist.

The church is the mother church of the First Baptist Church of Charlottesville. In 1831, James W. Goss, son of Elder John Goss, pastor of Preddys Creek Church, while a student at the University of Virginia, together with other members of the Preddys Creek Church, organized the First Baptist Church, of this city. After this church was formed it called as its first pastor, the Rev. R. L. Coleman, then recently ordained by Preddys Creek Church.

Liberty, Spring Hill, Mechanicsville, Barboursville, Laurel Hill and other Baptist churches drew heavily upon Preddys Creek Church in their organization.

In the church's history it has had fifteen pastors and nine supply pastors.

Among the pastors who served the church for long periods were: Joseph Fox, John Goss, Dr. Charles Quarles, J. M. Farrar and Dr. Henry L. Quarles. The church has only two of its permanent pastors living, the Rev. J. L. Wiley, of Crozet, and the Rev. E. T. Cox, of Gordonsville.

DIAMOND TRIAL SET ON TORTURE CHARGE

New York Gangster Fears Prison in Case to Be Opened Today.

Troy, N. Y., July 12 (U.P.).—Sickly, emaciated and worried by the thought that he may soon be in jail, Jack "Legs" Diamond, the East's most widely publicized gangster, goes on trial on a charge of first degree assault tomorrow at a special term of supreme court.

The trial will be humiliating enough for Diamond, as the man popularly credited with a dozen or more killings comes to justice on an indictment accusing him of applying matches to the bare feet of a bucolic truck driver.

He will be tried before Justice James C. Cropsey and a jury, a special term of court having been called by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt to dispose of the case. A special panel of 150 veniremen has been ordered.

The slim, pale young gangster, who has survived three assaults upon his life by rival racketeers, is accused of having waylaid Grover Parks, a truckman of Cairo, and James Duncan, Parks' assistant, on a lonely road near Catskill several months ago.

Feet Burned by Matches.

Diamond and members of his gang, it is charged, tortured Parks by burning the soles of his feet with matches in an effort to make him disclose the location of an applejack still.

The prosecution is to be conducted by Attorney General John J. Bennett, who superseded the county district attorney at the behest of Gov. Roosevelt. Bennett's investigation resulted in a dozen indictments charging the gangster with kidnaping, assault, coercion and carrying a gun.

Bennett will be aided by Assistant Attorney General Henry Epstein, who has worked on the Diamond case since the night of April 29, when Jack was seriously wounded at the Saratoga Inn, near Acra.

It is expected that the State will call only two witnesses—Parks and Duncan—in its attempt to place the New York gang leader behind prison bars, and should Diamond be acquitted on the assault charge the attorney general has indicated that he will go after him on the coercion, gun carrying and kidnaping charges.

Diamond to Offer Alibi.

"Legs" will be defended by half a dozen lawyers. It is understood he will offer an alibi, claiming he was in Albany when Parks was kidnaped and tortured.

Extra precautions have been taken both to guard Diamond from his underworld enemies and to protect the jury and prosecutors. Diamond is stopping at the Albany Hotel and is watched night and day by detectives.

In order to forestall any attempts by friends of Diamond to intimidate witnesses or jurors, it is understood that Bennett has ordered the presence of a detail of State troopers, all in plain clothes.

The case has attracted wide interest, not only because of Diamond's notoriety but because the people of lower New York State are determined to get rid of him.

Westchester County Invaded.

Within the last year Diamond, who heretofore has confined his operations to New York City, has instituted a "reign of terror" in the Catskill district of Westchester county, attempting to set himself up as a king of the district's whisky, applejack and beer industry.

As his interests broadened, the hitherto peaceful district began developing roadhouses, hijacking operations and frequent shooting affairs.

Public feeling against the intrusion of the gangsters reached its height when Diamond was shot, and demands that he be jailed became so numerous that Governor Roosevelt intervened.

Mexico Moving to Right, American Writer Asserts

Frank C. Hanighen Credits National Revolutionary Party With Making Rapid Strides; Government Cleared in Church Conflict.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Frank C. Hanighen, writer, just back from Mexico after a study of political conditions there, will advance the opinion in next Wednesday's issue of the Commonweal that Mexico "is moving to the right."

Not the least important agent in the transformation from a "red Mexico," Mr. Hanighen writes, is the P. N. R.—the National Revolutionary party.

"It lacks a Mussolini and it manifests none of the violence of its Italian counterpart," he says, "but its main support is the army and, in spite of the radical sound of its title, its general policies are conservative and anticommunistic."

Although he discusses the set-up of the P. N. R., its alleged intolerance of any opposition, the muzzling of the press and the position of Gen. Plutarco Calles in Mexican politics, the writer devotes the most part of his study to the renewed church-state conflict, giving the Mexican Federal Government a clean bill.

The difficulties with the church, he says, lie in the situations which exist in several states, the most flagrant of which he names Tabasco. There, he says, * * * "a bloody tyrant * * * has instituted a veritable anti-clerical reign of terror."

Bishop Camacho, appointed a year ago, still is waiting in Mexico City for more favorable conditions before proceeding to his see, according to the writer. The other states named by him as "displaying fanatical tendencies," are Vera Cruz, Michoacan, Naharit and Zacatecas.

He says the Federal Government means to follow an agreement to administer the laws in a sincere spirit of concord and without sectarianism, but is not strong enough to impose the spirit upon the unruly states.

Once Every Hour Before Dinner

WE'VE counted the number of times food is delivered to our stores every day. Big trucks, little trucks, medium-sized trucks—every time anything on wheels drove up to our doors with something new for us, we marked it down.

We did it so we could go around asking people, "Guess why our stores always have nice fresh food?" and when they gave up we could say, "Because our stores get ten separate deliveries of nice fresh food every single day."

The stores we checked up on were receiving new supplies of fresh groceries sixty-two times a week—about once every hour. But, of course, some stores get fewer deliveries, just as others get more. So you see we're not trying to stretch it.

KANSAS CITY PLANE LEADER IN AIR TOUR

Gulfport and New Orleans on Today's Flight From Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala., July 12 (A.P.).—Jack B. Storey, of Kansas City, led nine planes of the national air tour as they landed here today from Birmingham.

Eddie Stimson and Harry Russell, of Dearborn, brought their planes down next in order as the ships reached Montgomery's new municipal airport.

The next in the order of landing were J. H. Smart, Pine Bluff, Ark.; Joe Meehan, Maryville, Mich.; Lee Gehlbach, Detroit; L. R. Bayles, Springfield, Mass.; William Lancaster, New York, and George Dickson, Pittsburgh.

The airport was crowded with spectators as Storey landed at 10:44 a. m. The last plane, piloted by Dickson came down at 11:08.

Tonight the pilots contesting in the tour and officials were guests at a banquet.

The planes are to take off at 10 a. m. tomorrow for Gulfport, Miss., thence to New Oceans for an overnight stop.

There were no mishaps on the flight from Birmingham to Montgomery.

Martins Ferry, Ohio, July 12 (A.P.).—Charles Sugg, 30, aviator of St. Claire, Mich., died in a hospital here today of a fractured skull suffered when his plane smashed into a hill at Yorkville, Ohio, last Wednesday while he was participating in the national air tour.

Sugg has been unconscious for 90 hours when he died. In taking off from Yorkville for Columbus in continuation of the national tour, his plane failed to gain sufficient altitude and hit an elevation adjoining the airport.

RETURN OF SALOONS VIEWED AS MENACE

Advanced Era Is Credited to Beneficial Effect of Prohibition.

San Francisco, July 12 (A.P.).—gates to the International Society of Christian Endeavor convention here today, the Rev. Mark A. Matthews, Seattle, said the United States could not have the "advanced, efficient mechanical and scientific age we now have and get along with breweries and distilleries."

He classified the foes of prohibition as "those who desire to reestablish alcoholic business and the old-time alcoholic rule of America those who desire to profit from reestablishing this business and those who are interested because of personal appetites."

"At least one of these reasons," he said, "and in many cases all three of them dominate the repeal movement. I challenge America or the world to find a spot where the brewery, distillery or saloon ever advocated temperance, obedience to law, sobriety or Christian principles.

"Do you want the manufacturing plants of productive industry, churches, schools, or do you vote for the brewery, beer garden and saloon? You can not have both.

"There is but one way in which the Constitution can be amended. If 36 States vote for repeal, the eighteenth amendment would be repealed. Until or unless that occurs, good citizenship calls for hearty and complete compliance with the will of the people expressed in the Constitution as it now exists."

Dr. Matthews was the only speaker at the afternoon session of the convention presided over by Dr. Ira Landrith. Christian Endeavor leaders occupied the pulpits of 25 San Francisco churches this morning, bringing the message of Christian youth to varied audiences.

Coolidge, Back at Old Home, Fishes, Chats, Hikes, Reads

Former President, Fly Purist, Disdaining Worms for Bait, Nets Five Trout; Formality Lacking in Greeting Friends on Vacation.

Plymouth, Vt., July 12 (A.P.).—Calvin Coolidge, back in the home of his childhood, strolled today among the peaceful scenes and mellow friendships of his youth.

The former President, with Mrs. Coolidge, arrived yesterday for his annual vacation in the Coolidge homestead, where eight years ago the late John Coolidge administered the oath of office as President to his son.

The vacation started off auspiciously. Within a few hours of his arrival, Mr. Coolidge had pulled five plump, fighting trout from the pond of an old schoolmate, "Hers" Moore, about a mile from the Coolidge farm.

It so happened the former President's catch provided interesting news to the community and particularly to that group of friends who used to josh their illustrious fellow townsman because he fished with worms for bait. Mr. Coolidge used flies on his hook yesterday and confided afterward to Moore he doesn't go "plugging for them any more."

"We call it plugging to fish with worms for bait," Moore said, "and no real fisherman would do it."

The Coolidges' first caller was the former President's aunt, Mrs. John Wilder, who visited the homestead a few minutes after they arrived. Mr. Coolidge escorted her back to her home, an eighth of a mile away, and passed a half-hour or so with his uncle, John Wilder, who is ill.

Then followed lunch, and a trek to the trout pond with Edward R. Benson, of Woodstock, as his companion.

There was no formality as the former President greeted old friends and neighbors in the village. It was "Howdy Ed," to his cousin, Edward J. Blanchard, and "Hello, Azro," to Azro Johnson, a neighbor of the Coolidges for many years.

Mr. Coolidge hasn't any plans for his vacation except to look over the farm. However, Plymouth residents know exactly what he'll do. He'll spend many hours fishing and many more in chatting with old neighbors. He'll go on automobile rides about the countryside and he'll read a book or two. But those who know him best predict he'll draw his greatest pleasure from the walks he takes—alone with his memories—over paths he trod before he set out on the trail that led to the White House.

PLANES TO AID FIGHT ON FIRES IN FORESTS

Most of Series of Blazes on West Coast Are Placed Under Control.

Spokane, Wash., July 12 (A.P.).—Airplanes were ready today to carry emergency fighting crews to fires in any of the Northwest's 20 national forests as most of a series of blazes were placed under control.

Fourteen tri-motored ships, the Government's newest defenses against timber blazes, were placed at the forest service's disposal by Nick Namer, Spokane pilot. These ships can be rushed to new blazes a few hours after serial patrols report them, where days are required by land travel.

Construction of emergency landing fields in strategic positions in Montana, Idaho and Washington made possible use of ships for this purpose. Heretofore smaller planes have carried equipment and supplies to base camps where small landing fields prevented use of the large planes.

Besides the Hemlock Creek fire in the Clearwater National Forest of northern Idaho, where 6,000 acres of timber had been seared, other blazes in the district were under control. Six hundred fighters were battling the Hemlock Creek blaze, where fire had eaten through much valuable timber.

Two fires in the Elk River district were controlled after burning over 400 acres of cut-over land and some timber. Western Montana reported fires in the Lolo Forest, where 230 men were making efforts to construct trenches.

Forests are so dry that tiny fires in a few hours are fanned into conflagrations that baffle hundreds of men for weeks and destroy millions of feet of timber. If trenched at once, a dozen or so men can subdue them.

GAMBLING IN WHEAT.

A new demand for legislation to restrict speculation in agricultural products has arisen out of President Hoover's denunciation of short selling in the wheat market. Senator Fletcher wants the grain futures act amended so that the names of speculators could be published. Other senators appear to be lining up behind Senator Caraway's bill to restrict trading in futures. Congress refused to enact this measure at its last session.

Carl Williams, of the Federal Farm Board, suggests that the Department of Agriculture might be authorized to publish the names of speculators who gamble for their own gain against the interests of the public. That would be an extremely delicate undertaking. Any Government agency could be expected to run into difficulties if it undertook to say what traders were rendering public service and which ones were merely gambling for profits.

It is well to note that President Hoover did not express any views on the "economics of short selling in normal times." His purpose is to check the activity of those interests that are deliberately selling short to depress prices in the present market. Since the emergency may be temporary and Congress does not meet until December, it can not be supposed that the President had in mind any legislative restrictions. His statement was rather an appeal to speculators to be mindful of the interests of the whole country.

Nor did the President condemn dealings in grain futures. He specifically pointed out that he had no reference to the legitimate grain trade, nor to hedging. Under the present marketing system hedging seems to be an essential safeguard against price fluctuations. No desire to change the marketing system for agricultural products can be read into Mr. Hoover's statement. It was aimed directly at the bears who are driving wheat prices to subnormal levels.

Economists recognize that there is a legitimate field for grain speculations. The grain exchanges furnish a year-round market for agricultural commodities and thus tend to stabilize prices. Like many other fields of legitimate business the grain trade is subject to abuses. But it is extremely difficult for Congress to legislate against those abuses without hampering legitimate trade and thereby injuring the cause of the farmer. The problem is not one for which Congress can provide a ready-made panacea.

It is evident that the wheat holdings of the Farm Board have an important bearing on the situation. Buyers who are normally in the market for wheat hesitate this year because the Government holds more than 200,000,000 bushels that may be sold. So long as this surplus is held it is certain to be a disturbing influence.

The very fact that a larger crop will be harvested this year has a depressing effect on the wheat market. Farmers have refused to take the advice of the Farm Board. Whatever influences may enter into the present situation a major portion of the blame for the current low prices rests upon their shoulders.

MASS LEADERSHIP.

The modern era of mass production has substituted in many instances organizations and groups for individuals. Formerly a great industry, a movement, an art, or a war was headed by an outstanding personality. The leaders and heroes of the day were responsible for advances and innovations as well as for maintaining the standards of the time, while today concerted action of the many is responsible for most achievements.

The machine is standardizing people, says Winston Churchill, the English statesman, and modern thinking has become collective. The diffusion of information and education through many widespread agencies results in equipping individuals with uniform sentiments and prejudices. This, Mr. Churchill believes, destroys the conditions to which are due the masterpieces of the human mind.

Modern war, like industry, is the result of the coordinated efforts of many men. The intricacies of various branches of fighting require skilled experts in each line. Personal leadership of a general and valor on the part of his troops are no longer the only requisites in the midst of battle. It is far from the scene of actual fighting that the commander now directs the movement of armies. His cool calculations, aided by expert advice and concerted mass effort, rob war of the daring brilliance and romance that are dependent on individual action. It is to be hoped that this loss will mean the acquisition by humanity of a mass desire to avoid such conflict.

As war is being robbed of its heroes, so peace has lost its idols as well. Mass psychology has killed the great, it is said. John Morley, statesman, writer and philanthropist, stated before his death that the leaders of the twentieth century are far outranked by those of preceding periods. The world may indeed, be suffering from a dearth of supermen today, but as a rule there are so few in every generation that one or two in an epoch will make that period seem singularly blessed to later generations. It is well to remember that Jonathan Swift decried the decadence of English style during his times.

CHANGING ISSUES.

No more striking evidence of the effects of modern communication and its influence on thought and opinion has been seen than in the recent shifting of public interests. Only a few months ago prohibition achieved such prominence that many people thought it would become the leading issue of the 1932 campaign. General discussion by the press, party speakers, radio addresses and organization propaganda soon made it evident that differences of opinion on this subject throughout the Nation took no account of political party lines. Advocacy and opposition to prohibition are matters of intimate personal preference upon which it is impossible to generalize.

From the wet and dry debate discussion shifted to the economic situation and unemployment as demands were made for an extra session of Congress and many extravagant schemes for immediate distribution of Federal funds were proposed. During the last three weeks enthusiastic reception of President Hoover's proposal for a holiday on international debts has absorbed the attention of the world, and in this country obliterated consideration of other issues. That question having reached the prosaic stage of working out details, Americans return to their political mutton and even in the midst of summer weather begin to line up party arguments once more.

The remarkable and probably unprecedented cooperation given by both parties to President Hoover's moratorium paralyzed political propaganda. Personal hostilities and arguments on minor issues were silenced. But the Democrats, in common with all the world, do not fail to realize that President Hoover has gained tremendously in prestige and leadership by the successful close of these negotiations. It was a master stroke, not conceived or executed for political credit, and yet an act that has substantially strengthened the President's hold upon the people. Republicans realize the situation and are trying not to appear too eager to capitalize the accomplishment. Democrats are making a desperate effort to turn public attention back to the tariff and the depression.

The last three months have witnessed changes in topics of dominant interest to the American people such as this country probably has never experienced before. It is due in large measure to the constantly increasing rapidity with which knowledge of events and issues in disseminated. What prophet has the temerity to forecast the paramount issue of the campaigns a year from now?

INDEBTEDNESS OF CITIES.

The increasing demand for permanent improvements in American cities is responsible for a general rise in municipal indebtedness throughout the country. A recent survey extending to nearly 200 cities, including all the larger ones, shows that the average per capita debt increased from $95.75 to $100.67 last year. These figures are obtained by comparing the net total debt, excluding the self-supporting indebtedness, with the total population.

Even in cities of more or less equal population there is wide variation in the amount of indebtedness. In the first group of cities of over 500,000 inhabitants Philadelphia has a big lead, showing a per capita debt of $207.07, while St. Louis is at the other end of the list, with only $63.63 per capita. New York City residents are responsible for $161.15 each, and in Chicago the liability is $94.64. Among the smaller cities Atlantic City is the big borrower. Its debt for public improvements amounts to $396 for every citizen. The smallest amount borrowed per capita by any city of more than 30,000 inhabitants is $14.81. Credit for that record goes to Rockville, Ill.

It is only fair to Atlantic City, which appears to be such a spendthrift, to explain that its indebtedness is charged to its accredited population of 66,000, but the summer residents of this resort often exceed 300,000. Washington does not appear in the calculations since the Capital has no bonded debt. Newark's debt runs to $140.68 per capita, while out on the Pacific Coast that of Seattle is only $69.91. Ten Canadian cities for which comparison could be made showed an average indebtedness of $116.01 at the end of 1930 as compared with $106.15 at the end of 1929.

MORE HOMES NEEDED.

During the last 30 days the National Association of Real Estate Boards has been conducting a survey in 381 American cities. Knowledge gleaned therefrom shows that few American cities are overbuilt in residential districts. There is further demand for apartment structures and single family residences. In fact, the survey indicates that a building boom is on the way. The carpenters' hammers and the bricklayers' trowels will soon be taken out of the tool chests.

Of the American cities surveyed about 50 per cent report markets for real estate more active than at this time last year. Eighteen per cent are experiencing something like startling activity. The outstanding demand is for single family residences. Seventeen per cent of the cities surveyed show an actual shortage in residential property.

Figures for Washington are not yet available; but it is the consensus of opinion among realty men that the year ahead will witness consistent expansion in real estate activities. Already there is a manifestation of this in suburban districts. Washington's steady growth insures constant building.

Perhaps no other city in the Nation has certainty of development equal to that of Washington. As the Nation grows so grows the Capital. With every expansion of governmental activity there is renewed demand for housing. With the growth of the Government Washington real estate values have advanced with few fluctuations. In recent years the city has grown much faster than have Government pay rolls.

VACATION SAFEGUARDS.

A summer vacation should result in better health as well as recreation if properly planned. The enthusiasm of the first day, however, often results in sunburn, fatigue and impared digestion which spoil the ensuing days. Loss of time out of the ordinary two weeks' leave is unfortunate, yet if care is not taken on recovery from the first upset the entire vacation may be of greater harm than benefit.

A few suggestions for vacationists are given by Dr. Lloyd S. Arnold, of the New York department of health. Sunburn, he says, necessitates the internal adjustment of the body to the changed external condition. Therefore, during the time that the skin is sore and peeling, candy, ice cream and other sweets should be avoided. An irritated condition of the skin causes the digestive tract to curtail the flow of digestive acid. Extreme fatigue and even hot weather will often affect the digestive organs in the same way. At such times it is advisable to drink unsweetened acidulated beverages, soured milk and fruit juices.

Water that is not known to be perfectly pure should be avoided or boiled. The addition of hypochlorite tablets, which can be procured at any drug store, is often an effective precautionary measure. While boiling is the only sure way to destroy typhoid germs the addition of lemon or vinegar helps to offset impurities.

The soldiers of Caesar, when in Equatorial Asia and Africa, were all provided with a canteen of vinegar. A bit of this acid was added to drinking water as a guard against disease. Even today in India and Asia foreigners make a practice, in some sections, of adding acid to their water. This is done primarily to kill germs, but it provides as well acid for digestive purposes.

Overexercising and overeating constitute another danger of the summer vacation. Boils, fevers and general inertia that occasionally result from the holiday can be guarded against by using care and a little discrimination in the activities and pleasures of vacationing.

STATE CAPITALISM

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Steadily and surely, Bolshevist Russia is moving away from socialism and toward state capitalism. The new policies for Russian industry just announced by Joseph Stalin, secretary-general of the Communist party, carry the transition well across the line. Wages no longer are to be equal, but are to be adjusted according to the type of work performed.

The third year of the five-year plan finds Stalin in a chastened mood. No longer does he pour contempt upon capitalistic methods; instead, he gradually adopts them. Experience with the human element in industry has convinced him that it is one thing to take the horse to the trough, but another to make him drink. The controlling powers in the Soviet system fixed hours of labor and wages. They drafted men into certain lines of employment. They rationed them, set them a goal, and checked their output.

What was the result? Unskilled workers, paid substantially the same wages as skilled men, showed no interest in raising their qualifications. Skilled workers, dissatisfied, moved from place to place. The quality of manufactured goods sank. Production fell below schedule, particularly in the heavy industries. Transportation, even with the assistance of foreign engineers and experts, made comparatively little advance.

Economic pressure began to make itself felt. Stalin learned that if Marxian theories were suited to the work of revolution, they were far from being adequate in dealing with the problem of social reconstruction. He therefore modified his policy. Among other things, he introduced piece-work rates. This was the first significant point at which Soviet industrialism turned from a collectivist to an individualist basis of reward for labor. Now the regime finds that wage scales generally must recognize individual energy and cultivated skill if there is to be an incentive for the training of abilities which industry needs.

Thus, although the Russian worker is still the employe of the state, or a state trust, he does not receive that approximately equal share with every other worker which has always been a fundamental of socialism. He works for the state on the same basis as he would for a capitalist employer—a wage commensurate with his job.

And yet not on the same basis either, for no capitalist employer could prevent him from leaving his job to take a better one. But the Soviets, according to reliable accounts, dictate to the individual where he shall work and deprive him of his food card if he seeks work elsewhere. How would a worker in America or western Europe like that kind of an employment system? One of Stalin's purposes in wage readjustment is to halt the shifting of workers from one place to another in quest of better living conditions.

Another of Stalin's announced purposes is to win back the intelligentsia. "It is our task," he says, "to change our attitude toward the technical and engineering forces of the older school, to pay more attention to them, to take better care of them, and to encourage them to show more initiative in their work."

Thus the Soviet dictator finds that training, experience and cultivated ability are indispensable in the nation's activities and that they must be given individual incentives. The relative ease with which the "dictatorship of the proletariat" was established misled the Communists into believing that it would be equally easy to build up a new social fabric and to carry out a policy of economic reorganization. In that process they are learning many things, one of which is that freedom and opportunity for the individual are of some importance even where all industry is owned and operated by the state.

More power to the scientist who is laboring to convert the mosquito to a vegetarian diet.

The State Department will borrow Maj. Price, of the Marines, to "observe" municipal elections in Nicaragua this fall; next year the presidential elections will be "supervised," after which the department hopes that "Nicaragua will be in a position to conduct free and fair elections without assistance."

If Maj. Price makes good, the demand for his services throughout the world (and at home) should exceed even the orders for Prof. Kemmerer's ministrations as doctor of national finance.

President Hoover, like a good newspaper reporter, will not embarrass his source of information by naming names, but he gives the anonymous wrist of the short wheat sellers a good hard slap.

The railroads, with assets of 24 billions plus, seeking Federal aid in Washington this week, somehow make the fellow who is pawning his watch feel a little better about it.

Unanimous consent is asked to relieve a lot of current history from the traditional necessity of repetition.

Thomas, of Oklahoma, who also specializes in one-man filibusters to tie up the last busy hours of the Senate, admits sending advance copies of the tariff bill to foreign nations. That would be his idea of getting impartial opinions.

Optimism isn't dead in New England. Boston still goes to see the Red Sox play ball.

We are fearful that the President's vindication of "legitimate hedging operations" in the wheat market may give undue encouragement to similar practices in Congress.

Director Woodcock is going to Porto Rico to investigate the drink question. He will find the greatest need is more fresh milk for the children.

California raisin growers are to get another Federal loan. Debt raisin' seems to be their "raison d'etre."

There is considerable complaint that the red ink of this era doesn't lend the cheer of the old Chianti days.

When a Wife Is a Good Sport, She Is Also a Sucker.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THIS is a short and simple drama of middle-class America in the era of Prohibition.

The first scene occurs inside a church.

Clergyman: "And will you love, honor and cherish?"

The Good Fellow: "I will."

The second scene reveals the dining room of a small and typical American home. There is a radio blaring jazz and static. The furniture is the installment kind.

Persons present are the Good Fellow, his wife, who tries to be a Good Sport, and three Poker Players.

On the dining table are bottles of ginger ale, poker chips, small change, cigarette stubs and a fruit jar half full of white liquor. There are small puddles of liquor and ginger ale on the table's polished surface, and a cigarette butt burns unnoticed on the rug.

The wife who tries to be a Good Sport sits in a corner. Her face is white, but she smiles brightly when the Good Fellow speaks to her.

First Poker Player: "I wish my wife was a good sport like you."

Second Poker Player: "Sure is a great little sport. Any man ish fort—forsh—luck to have lil sport like you."

Good Fellow: "I ain't had a decent hand all night. Seven dollars in the hole right now."

Third Poker Player: "Whas matter with me?"

He becomes very sick and there is a general knocking over of chairs and loud offers of advice.

In a few minutes the room is cleared. The Good Fellow has gone to bed.

The third scene is in the living room of the same house. The wife who tries to be a Good Sport is entertaining an Intimate Friend.

Intimate Friend: "I wouldn't put up with it."

Wife who tries etc.: "I don't mind it so much, except for the cleaning up. And if Bill is going to drink, I'd rather have him do it here at home." She pauses to clear her throat and wipe her eyes. "They broke my best vase last night. And burned holes in my rug."

The last scene is in an office down town. The three Poker Players are present.

First Poker Player: "What about a little game tonight?"

Second Poker Player: "We'll have to play at Bill's. My wife won't stand for it."

Third Poker Player: "Suits me if it suits Bill. My wife would stand for it as well as Bill's does, but I don't impose on her that way. And I don't want the kid to see me drinking. You got to set 'em a good example."

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

American Leadership.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

As vital questions of reparations payments, war debts, disarmament, international credits and currency stabilization have been thrashed over and determined by the Chief Executive and his aids, the fate of nations and the happiness of millions of persons have hinged on the wisdom and sanity of the handful of men who head the administration.

It is appalling, and still a matter of pride, for Americans to realize the vast power in world politics that is focused in Washington. It makes plain once more that America can not for any long period close its eyes to the condition of other nations and can not go its way alone. We not only are in the world and a part of it, but in large measure the impetus of world leadership must come from Washington.

Mr. Hoover has been at his best in these weeks as an administrator. As the most powerful person in world affairs today, he has stood up.

White House "Leaks."

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Unfortunately, perhaps, for Presidents and their families, the American people do not regard the White House as untouchable. Furthermore, they have an immense and justifiable curiosity about the man upon whom they have bestowed the highest honor at their disposal.

Among the various "leaks" that can be called to mind, none seems to have borne any particular importance. No thrones were toppled and hardly any one was injured by the revelation that the 90-mile trip from the Rapidan was made in two and a half hours and that on this occasion sandwiches were consumed in the presidential automobile.

Praise From Abroad.

Indianapolis News.

Out of the facts, figures and dates, as dealt with in a newly declared one-year world moratorium in war reparations and intergovernmental debts, comes a changed and invigorating atmosphere. The Paris Temps, on the day after the suspension proposal of President Hoover was published, noted that it was of a character "profoundly to influence the evolution of the whole international situation." The London Times viewed the undertaking as "a courageous attempt to mitigate the mass pessimism" that was weighing down countries and "hindering recuperative effort." These utterances expressed a sentiment that found voice round the earth. It went back to the mechanics and technicalities involved in making a moratorium effective to the fundamentals.

Costly Racketeering.

Detroit Free Press.

The racketeering industry is estimated to take $18,000,000,000 out of the Nation's pocket annually. One year's moratorium on racketeering would enable the United States to pay off its national debt and still have a couple of billions to spend for other things.

If Democrats can stick most of the pieces together—and no new breaks occur—they may get their party in shape to enter a candidate for President next year.

Somebody has suggested that we suspend politics for a year. How about politicians?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Historian Claims That Gen. Pickett Took No Active Part in Charge on Cemetery Ridge.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the death of Mrs. George E. Pickett the Associated Press made this statement: "On July 3, 1863, Gen Pickett led a magnificent charge on Cemetery Ridge at Gettysburg."

As a matter of fact, Gen. Pickett did not in person lead the charge despite the popular belief that he did. This misstatement has repeatedly been entered in formal historical narrative perhaps hundreds of times. Gen. Pickett was commander of a division in the Confederate Army. Hence to say he did not lead the charge is not meant as a reflection upon this officer. On the other hand, the men who are entitled to credit for this attack, and those who actually led it were Garnett on the left, Armistead in the center and Kempler on the right. Garnett and Armistead were killed and Kempler dangerously wounded. In addition, Gens. Pettigrew and Trimble took part in the charge to the left of Garnett. Gen. Pickett was considerably to the rear and was in charge of the general operations. He can not be blamed for failure, as that blame is becoming more and more definitely placed upon the tardiness, if not positive disobedience of Gen. Longstreet. So widespread has been the impression of Pickett's personal leadership in the famous Gettysburg attack upon Cemetery Ridge that it is only in the last year or two that some great military critic attached to a volume then in the press an addendum. In this edition he declared he had "just discovered" that Maj. Gen. Pickett had taken no active part in the charge. J. H. BOSWELL.

A League of Famous Aviators to Choose Air Route Across Atlantic Is Proposed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your Copenhagen dispatch of July 2, suggesting, "A league of transatlantic fliers, headed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, to plot the safest airline between Europe and America, was proposed today by Capt. Holger Hoiriis, pilot of the airplane Liberty," is eminently constructive and the proposal should be encouraged by all proper means.

Col. Lindbergh is the logical head for such a movement. A few capable aides should be associated with him. These should chart a feasible route and designate places for needed seadromes. Then let the money that is being spent in spectacular stunts be appropriated to erect and anchor these seadromes, and we shall soon have the ocean successfully bridged for safe and profitable travel.

This would afford unbounded opportunity for the cultivation of neighborliness among the nations of the world. W. B. WITHERSPOON.

Citizen Thinks Statues Disfigure Pennsylvania Avenue and Asks That They Be Removed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statue of Alexander R. Shepherd, at Fourteenth and Pennsylvania avenue, is an eyesore and anything but attractive. The base upon which the statue stands is grotesque and far from being a thing of beauty. If the Government hopes to improve the appearance of Pennsylvania Avenue through the new building program that is well under way, I think one of the first steps that should be taken before the new buildings are erected is to tear down all of the unsightly statues that disfigure this thoroughfare. There are too many statues in this fair city of ours anyway. They certainly do not add to the beauty of Washington.

J. J. CROWLEY.

"Sandy" Wants More Room on the Streets to Park Tin Lizzies.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Traffic congestion in Washington is getting worse all the time. During the rush hours automobiles are crowded into great jams because the streets are not wide enough. I think that the way to cure these conditions is to cut down all the trees in the city and thus widen every street by 6 to 10 feet. This is an age of progress. The horse has given way to the automobile. Bus companies are giving railways throughout the country a great deal of competition and the airplane will soon be a formidable competitor of them all, so why not let the trees in the city give way to progress? CRAFTSMAN SUMMER.

Summer has a wealth of charms:
Marigold and mignonette,
Trees with blossoms in their arms.
Everywhere is beauty set.
Wheresoever mortals stray
Following folly, fame or trade
In the drama which they play
Perfectly the scene is laid.

Summer is a craftsman rare
Fashioning the drops and wings.
With exquisite skill and care
Doing most surprising things.
With his colors fresh and bold
Splashed upon a background green,
For the young and for the old
Summer builds a perfect scene.

If, as once wise Shakespeare said,
All the world is but a stage
Which the feet of men must tread
To the dreary seventh age
Then from curtain rise to fall
In whatever roles we play,
For the actors, one and all,
Summer builds a setting gay.

Round about us as we seek
Fame and fortune through the years,
And our little lines we speak,
Beauty everywhere appears,
Amid scenes of splendor rare
Which the summer time prepares,
Man goes rushing here and there
Busy with his small affairs.

THE mystery regarding Marion Talley, former Metropolitan Opera Company soprano, deepens with her emerging tonight for a single appearance on the Packard program (WJZ net, including WBAL Baltimore, 9:30 o'clock), and at the conclusion of the concert, again retiring to her farm in Kansas.

"I have no plans," Miss Talley is quoted as saying. "Honestly, although some people think it is peculiar, we shall return to the farm for harvest. We like it there. We are happy."

One of the songs which Miss Talley will sing tonight will be "Comin' Thru' the Rye."

You'll probably get the idea hearing Merle Thorpe discuss the "Barbershop as a Business Barometer" tonight that we have had a pretty close shave.

The operators of a new deep-sea diving machine designed to locate sunken treasure plan to recover what is variously rumored as from one to several million dollars in gold, silver and jewels lying in the wreck of the S. S. Merida, 240 feet undersea off Cape Charles, Va. Microphones will be installed in the diving machine and the words of the diver will be radioed to the Nation.

H. G. WELLS will talk on "Russia in the Melting Pot," in an address from London over WMAL at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Wells has written much about Russia, including his book 'Russia Under the Shadows." He has toured the Soviet states to obtain more first-hand knowledge of conditions there.

The Chicago baseball broadcasting situation is without parallel in radio. Eight stations go on the air each day the Cubs and White Sox play ball with play-by-play descriptions.

The sponsors are said to be paying some such prices as the following: WMAQ, $25,000 per season; WENR, $35,000; WBBM, $40,000; WJJD, $8,000; WIBO, $12,000; WGN, $150 game, and WCFL is underwritten by a finance company.

A Boy Scout program will be inaugurated at 3:45 o'clock Wednesday afternoon (WEAF network).

"Bird and Vash," a new comedy act which was scheduled to have its premiere broadcast last Monday, but was postponed at the request of its author, Raymond Van Sickle, will have its opening performance tonight (WABC, 5:45 p. m.). The series will be heard daily.

ONE of the weaknesses in television, as at present developed, is the fact that most every system requires a different kind of a receiving set. If a looker-in possesses one kind of a set, it does not necessarily mean that he can receive other pictures than those receivable on his own set.

The situation has been likened to the old days before electric light sockets were standardized and each socket required a different kind of a tube.

BELIEVING her throat to be a bit husky, Kate Smith, "Songbird of the South," took a cough drop in her mouth, and, forgetting all about it, stepped before the "mike" for a number. Just as she hit a high note, the pellet, taking advantage of the situation, slipped down her throat. After gulping once or twice, Kate stopped to catch her breath, and the orchestra continued the number on its own.

Immediately after the broadcast she received a telephone call from her mother in Washington. "What happened to you? I thought you were choking to death for a second," her mother said.

There is to be a regular exchange of programs between Austria and the United States via transatlantic wireless as the result of an arrangement which has just been made in Vienna.

Jean Patou INTERPRETS the MODE

Black wool crepe coat, with novel collars and cuffs of reversible baby lamb and unusual incrustations. (Courtesy of Jean Patou, Paris.)

New York, July 12.

AND he asked me not to say too much about it until the middle of August! He is the charming director of one of the biggest fabric houses in the world and he showed me this winter (really!) collection of beautiful materials and he assured me that the middle of August was the earliest possible moment that news as to his winter materials could be made public.

But I am permitted to divulge a few interesting details—such as, for instance, that our fall and winter frocks will be made of wool as sheer and supple as any chiffon. And that artificial silk in the quality used by this house can be woven into materials looking exactly like wools. Also that sheer, printed woolens will make some of our prettiest winter-afternoon frocks, if my informant knows his stuff.

Then there is the jersey, almost fine enough to slip through a wedding ring, that this house makes, for the haut couture and which has been used this past season to make several of the most beautiful evening gowns in the collections. There's something about this kind of jersey that permits it to be draped into, soft statuesque folds with a grace that no other material allows. And, this type of evening gown that features soft draping in the Greek manner, rather than molded lines is going to be an important style this winter. So "wedding-ring" jersey may come into its own in a big way for our most elegant evening gowns!

* * * *

'N' right here and now before I use up all my space again as I did last week, I want to show you the coat of Jean Patou's ensemble! Isn't it delightful, with its slim lines, given by the clever incrustations? This is of black wool crepe, and the trim collars and cuffs are of black baby lamb—reversible, my deahs, so that the moment one side shows the least bit of wear, the cuffs and collar can be turned to the other, and the whole coat will regain its pristine glory!

* * * *

Wel-l-l-l, my inadvertently leaving this coat out of the picture last week did one thing, anyway! It proves to you that as a separate coat, standing alone, it's just as successful as part of an ensemble, n'est-ce pas?

If you are like I am—you love a hat with a brim for summer. 'N' a brimmed hat can be just as smart to wear with tailored things as a little turban—as you can tell from the sketch. This one is of coral, bound with coral grosgrain ribbon, and has two perky quills for chic!

* * * *

"Styles change from day to day—but scarves go on in the same old way," said one of my deah publique recently. But she's wrong as can be—scarves are far from going on in the same old way! They are going on, bigger and better than ever, but they are as different from the old kind as day is from night! Want me to prove it? Wel-l-l-l, just send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, and you'll see! 'N' I think that the more "different" scarves become, the more adorable they are!

Culbertson on Contract

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

HIGHER STRATEGY AND BRIDGE PSYCHOLOGY.

SURPRISE tactics are perfectly ethical and are sanctioned among the best players, provided no private understanding of any kind exists between partners. It is the basis of construction of card games that anyone has a right to bid and play his hand as he sees fit; it is the basis of card ethics that a private understanding between partners, be it even tacit, is a gross violation of the code of sportsmanship, amounting to cheating. With this stringent proviso, surprise bids are a legitimate and interesting part of Contract tactics. They are eminently fair because, in attempting to misinform the opponents, the same and sometime even greater, chance is taken of misleading the partner.

Recently the use of psychic bids, so called because they are based more upon elements of psychology than upon the cards held, has become quite general. One of the most successful psychic bidders is Mr. Willard S. Karn, of New York, who gives the following as the reason for such bids and as in explanation of their frequent success.

"Psychics are the expert's relief from a steady bidding diet. Eastern players have concentrated on Contract for the post four years and they realize that the complexities of concentract bidding afford more information to the opponents than did auction. As an offset, and to withhold information where these players have master hands, or to interrupt communications when defending, they have, in certain cases, turned to what are now called psychics or acrobatics. Such bids were used in Auction, where they were known as shift bids, the most famous exampe being the old steamboat hand where, sitting on the left of an opening notrump bidder, an Overcall of two clubs could be made on the following hand:

♦ K Q J 10 9 7 5
♣ A

Should the opponents double, the Declarer shifts to his safe two diamond declaration. If encouraged by stoppers in clubs, which they are almost sure to hold, opponents continue with notrump, a business Double is made, diamonds are opened and the Ace of clubs is relied on as an in-card to assure a penalty.

"This shift or psychic bid is a model of safety. Unfortunately, Contract offords no such easy psychics and the major problem confronting the psychic bidder is a necessity of reducing risk so that it does not outweigh possible gain.

The more feverish tempo of Contract creates a tension which gives daring a greater chance to bring its darts home. What price psychics if unsuccessful, then is the only deterrent and the answer is psychological. A good result depresses opposition, and a bad one, and you can not obtain perfection, must be gracefully accepted.

"Luck is on the side of the heavy artillery. The average so-called big holder is a fine player whose confidence in himself is coupled with sufficient resourcefulness to enable him to find a succession of bids where the average player can hesitantly voice but one.

"Certain players can not use psychics. Their temperaments do not harmoniously blend with a trip into the void of an unknown chance. Such players use accepted yardsticks, whereas psychics can only be created, not measured, as in the case of quick-tricks, proper leads, &c. The creator is more often the natural card-sense player than the created or more synthetic expert. Great composers in music all play by ear—so in psychic Bridge.

"In applying the foregoing considerations, the master player of today combines basic soundness with his deceptive tactics. Contract bidding tells two opponents your hopes, expectancies and holding. You have but one partner. Two to one are good odds, even if they are only theoretical. That is my primary reason for using psychics constantly, although not continually—the odds favor me. Also, I know that there is actually no such thing as a good—from the perfection standpoint—Bridge player because every hand properly bid and played yields certain maximum results. Plus results can only be secured by lurfng one's opponents into bad bids, plays or leads. The psychic, then, is a trap based on certain knowledge that it is human to err.

"As a first and most simple example of the following hand is worthy of note. It combines three important fiactors necessary to the use of psychics and if it is your desire to add this type of bidding to your Contract game, this is the type of hand on which to practice psychic bids; first, because it offers a safety shift with the avoidance of important penalties; second, opponents are vulnerable, therefore cautious, whereas the psychic bidder is not vulnerable, which further reduces risk; third, since you are Third Hand in the bidding and partner has already passed, danger of partner taking you to a high contract is practically eliminated.

"Despite these safety factors, inexperienced players should avoid psychics of vulnerable and since a relaxed state of mind is one of the most important essentials to a successful partnership, acrobatics should not be attempted with a partner of double temperament.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♣(1)	Dbl.(2)
Pass	2NT(3)	Pass	3NT(4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A psychic bid with a hope of overawing opposition and interrupting their communications by bidding the suit in which opponents' game seems most likely. A fine bid and, in this case, eminently successful.
2—East is too strong to pass or bid one no trump and too weak to bid two no trump. Also a fine bid.
3—West's bid is proper and shows a maximum pass.
4—East, having a balanced distribution, falls into the trap and can not be criticized except for lack of imagination.

"North opens the Knave of Clubs and the contract is set one, whereas a spade game can not be missed."

Today's Pointer

CHOOSING BETWEEN TWO BIDDABLE SUITS.

Two-Suiters and Semi- Two- Suiters

When two suits are distributed 5-5 or 5-6, the higher ranking suit should be preferred in opening the bidding.

When two biddable suits are distributed 5-4 or 6-4, the longer suit should be bid first, irrespective of whether it is a minor or a major, or whether the longer suit is weaker in honors.

When holding a six or seven card suit, rebid such suit, as a rule, before showing a four-cardsuit.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF July 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., and from 6 p. m to 8:45 p. m.

July 13 is shown to be a day of advantage. Success in business ventures; happiness in a social way; excellent for sports. Outside influences will touch your life with friendly hands, and new interests will come your way.

The child born on this day, July 13, will have a stolid, plodding nature, and, although not brilliant in its school work, it will not make a bad mark in the world. Its stick-at-iveness will carry its feet onward toward the desired goals. It will be full of good cheer and will have a friendly attitude toward the world in general.

Born on a July 13, nature has supplied you with a goodly number of enviable traits, which are, unfortunately, offset by contradictory characteristics which prevent you from making the most of your gifts. You are outstandingly clever. You seldom fall in anything which you choose to do, but apathy, langour and selfishness have made you elect to do as little as possible. You like to watch life at its games, or at its work, and only be flicked by the edges of its flying skirts. You are a cynical, impatient, and many times bored, bystander.

You do not make many friends. Your caustic tongue and cool indifference keep those who admire you at arm's length. You chafe against all stupidity, humbug and sentimentality, which makes discourse difficult for you with many people. You have strong convictions, but you defend your beliefs more through your acts than words. You are so cocksure about your own judgments, that it annoys you to have to put up an argument in their defense. You are not a physical, moral or mental coward when big issues are at stake, but you take a "what-does-it-matter" view toward petty annoyances. You are loyal and honest, and you do not sidestep your blatant duties. You believe very much in personal liberty, and you loathe ties and obligations.

Successful people born July 13.

Nathan B. Forrest, Confederate general.

Roger Wolcott, Governor of Massachusetts.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

LATE JULY IN THE GARDEN.

DO not forget at this time to water all shrubs or trees which you planted in the spring. July is a hard month on young hardwooded plants. The second season they are usually well established and will get along with less moisture, but the first season they must be kept watered. Give each shrub or tree two bucketfuls of water every evening.

It is well in July to mulch your rose beds or perennial borders with leafmold or peat moss.

Should your lawn show signs of turning brown, give it a thorough soaking in the evening.

After your Japanese iris have finished flowering it is the time to lift and divide them. Usually they require dividing once in three or four years. Lift the crowns carefully and divide them with a sharp knife. Remember, when lifting them, that these varieties must be set deeper than the bearded kinds.

This is the time to make a final sowing of annual lupines, shirley poppies and mignonette.

The tarnish plant bug; that nefarious insect that punctures the growing tips of your asters in hot weather, can be kept in check with a tobacco spray or by dusting with air-slacked lime. It is also well to spray the plants, when young, with Bordeaux mixture to prevent rust.

Should your golden glow, sweet peas or nasturtiums be attacked with aphis, give the plants a few applications, five days apart, of any nicotine spray available.

The best way to obtain geraniums for winter use in the house is to make slips or cuttings at this time and to grow the plants in pots, shifting them into larger pots as they develop.

July is the time to set out clumps of Virginia cowslips, Mertensia Virginicas.

Do not forget to order your autumn crocuses for planting in early August.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFARRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Warner" is found in the earliest of English records. It is of French and ultimately of Germanic origin, and may mean either "defense-army" or "true-army." An English document of the twelfth century records this name in its Latinized form "Warnerus." Frequently "Warner" is a modern corrupt form of the older "Warrener" or "Warriner' meaning "the keeper of a warren,' and obviously indicating an original occupation. A certain Richard le Warner is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Loewe" (also spelled "Loew" and "Lowe") is of German origin. It means "the lion," and was frequently applied to persons who were thought to resemble that animal by their nature or habits. It will be recalled that in early days it was a common practice to display images or pictures of animals before private dwellings, as well as before inns and taverns, as a means of identification. Thus, the family name "Loewe" frequently means "he who lives at the sign of the lion." This name has often been adopted by German-Jewish families because of its resemblance to certain Hebrew names, especially "Levi" and its variations.

The family name "Pathe" is generally believed to be of French origin. Such is not the case, however, although some families have chosen to write the name with a French acute accent over the last letter. "Pathe" is of German origin, its source being the Old Germanic personal name "Bado" (also written "Pato") which means "battle." Hence, "Pathe" is frequently a German equivalent of the English name "Bates."

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

THE WOMAN'S CHOICE?

DEAR Frances McDonald: As usual, you have raised a most interesting question when you ask whether a man has a right to do the deciding for himself and the woman both when their two futures are at stake. The man feels he can not supply the things women are supposed to crave. So without inquiring whether the girl concerned does crave those unattainable things, he drops her without a word. This on the face of it is unfair—bitterly unfair if the girl happens to care. May I cite my own experience?

I was an only daughter of well-to-do people, but had had a most stilted and conventional girlhood as the daughters of the well-to-do frequently do. For instance, at summer resorts we always were parked at the best hotel surrounded by retired bankers and their staid wives—never at the livelier places where the young element found accommodations and lots of fun for one-tenth of what we paid. I never had any fun at all until Teddy came along. I had lost a dog and Teddy found him, returned him to our home and being a personable sort was asked to wait and meet me and receive my thanks. This when he refused the reward offered. He was a wonderful fellow. So much so that after I had known him six months my father said of him that if he had ever had a son, he would have asked nothing more that he would have been like Ted. If dad felt like that you can imagine how I felt. But Ted suddenly stopped coming. Dad and mother questioned me at first, then out of pity dropped the subject. For three years I was as one dead. I could not get back to my former lifeless routine of getting up, eating, going out, coming home, dressing, undressing.

At last a friend of dad's asked me to marry him. He was much younger than dad, but much older than I. Because I feared that my disappointment might make an eccentric of me, I consented. For Ted had ceased even to acknowledge Christmas cards. My marriage ended all hope of any girlhood or youth for me. I went into a large and imposing home and became a middle-aged matron. In less than three years Ted returned. He went to the bank to see my father before even coming to the house. Told him all his prospects, &c. Then came around to the subject of me. Dad told mother he wanted to kick him. Anyway he told him I was married. Ted merely said: "Well, then that's that." It was then dad wanted to do the kicking. That was that! My happiness. My life. All decided by him! And—that was that! They did not tell me for a long while. Not until they were sure that I was pretty fond of my husband. They need not have worried for I consider my husband the better man. He would never have expected a girl to stand for such treatment. He would consider that the choice was the woman's. He would state his case and ask the woman whether she cared to take a chance on waiting a few years for the man she loved.

Read Ads-Saved Thousands

You probably read some time ago an announcement by a man named Zaban that he could make resilient, clean mattresses out of your old ones.

Maybe for only $4 to $9 you were one of the first to try it. Folks soon saw the advantage of getting a really new mattress at about half cost. Each month—each year brings new customers who tell their friends.

All told, at a modest profit to ourselves, we have saved the people of Washington tens of thousands of dollars. Many are now having us convert their mattresses into the cushion spring type that cushions every curve. The cost is only $9 to $22.50. Shall we call for yours?

BEACH MAKES GOOD TO VISITOR CROWDS

Hundreds of City Residents Spend Delightful Day at Post Refuge.

Yesterday's delightful weather drew hundreds of Capital residents to Woodland Beach where they were convinced that all the nice things they had heard about this summer home development were true.

They came, daring Woodland Beach to prove its claim as one of the garden spots of Maryland, and they left singing the praises of this summer community on the banks of the South River. These visitors who traveled 32 miles to the beach saw 4½ miles of water front available for cottages. They saw scores of Washingtonians either comfortably settled in their homes there or busy erecting such places that they may enjoy the remainder of the warm weather in peace and quiet.

They saw ample waterfront for swimming purposes; they saw boat landings and they saw sportsmen on the river at their favorite pastime, fishing.

Children Wade in Water.

They saw children wading in safety and comfort; they saw amusement devices on land for these children; they saw a well appointed community clubhouse which will be turned over to the association of beach lot owners, and they saw attractive wooded areas which appeal to those seeking relief from heat.

They traveled over splendid roads to the beach, via Defense highway as far as Camp Parole; on well paved Maryland State Highway No. 2 across South River and then on Mayo road, leading to the beach.

If they asked about the old wooden bridge across the South River they learned that a new $750,000 concrete structure is soon to replace it, thereby increasing the value of property in the entire section along the river.

Low Price Is Amazing.

And when they inquired how they, too, might obtain land at Woodland Beach on which to build summer homes, they were amazed at the low price set for lots there. Each and every lot at the Beach bears a price tag of $93, but even with this low cost, the entire amount is not required to become a lot owner.

They learned that simply by paying $9 in cash plus the cost of a subscription to The Washington Post they might begin building operations, paying the remainder of the $93 in monthly installments of $3.50.

Woodland Beach in its summer garb is beautiful. It has all the requisites of a successful summer colony. It is rapidly assuming its place among the leaders of such resort sites in Maryland.

Those who get in now will be able to grow with the community and have a vote in its regulation. If you did not visit the Beach yesterday, call at The Post today and select your lot from the excellent maps always on display in this office. It is an opportunity you should not overlook.

WOODLAND BEACH LOT OWNERS ESCAPE HEAT

When the hot sun is bouncing off the pavements of the city, Woodland Beach is the place to be, disporting in the waters of the South River of Maryland as are these happy home owners at this resort development.

PHILIPPINE SAFETY LAID TO U.S. TRADE

Free Access to Markets Is Credited by Davis for Good Business.

(Associated Press.)

Free trade with the United States was credited yesterday by Governor General Dwight F. Davis with saving the Philippine Islands from a major economic disaster as a result of the world depression.

Davis, in his annual report, said the islands had not escaped the depression, but were suffering from it less than other countries.

"There is no question that the one thing which saved the Philippine Islands from a major economic disaster was the free access to the enormous American market," Davis said. "We could not have sold our sugar and many other crops in any other market."

Volume Makes Up Price Loss.

Although prices of the islands' principal products have fallen, in some cases to the lowest level in 40 years, Davis said increased volume had made up to some extent for the loss in price.

Pointing out that government revenues decreased considerably, he added: "It cannot be said that the general economic situation is good."

Aside from the economic situation, Davis reported conditions as a whole "have not been unsatisfactory," with excellent health conditions and little unrest.

Bolshevism Gains Ground.

He said, however, a small group has been more or less active in attempting to spread the principles of Bolshevism and while it has made little headway in the cities, "the situation is by no means so secure" in the provinces, particularly among farm tenants and laborers.

"The feeling among these people is rather widespread," he said, "that they have been ground down by usurious interest rates and are frequently deprived of lands which, rightfully or not, they believed they had a title to.

"Among such people the speeches of a professional agitator may find receptive listeners and the situation is one which requires careful watching. The remedy for this situation is, of course, better credit facilities for the small farmer and improvement in the land title situation."

TRADE UPTURN SIGNS APPEAR ON HORIZON

Textiles, Shoes, Auto Tires Indicate Revival; Steel Still Holds Back.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Although it is early in the period of midsummer business quiet to look for stirrings in preparation for autumn, encouraging signs are not wholly lacking.

Reports from wholesalers during the past week indicate some slight improvement, and textile and shoe manufacturers are better occupied than they were at this time last year.

Although generally favorably comparisons with a year previously are not expected until the final quarter of this year, the depression has now dragged along far enough to permit better showings here and there. As the June statistics appear, it is notable that textiles, shoes, rubber tires, chain store sales, and sales of some automobile makers, show gains over June of 1930. Conspicuously adverse, however, remain the comparisons presented by operations in that basic industry, iron and steel.

Debt Optimism Wanes.

The wave of optimism created three weeks ago by the war debt holiday proposal has continued to diminish, now that the plan has at last been accepted, and confidence in the German financial situation has been only partially restored. More conservative quarters have not been particularly surprised, however, since a sudden lifting of spirits is usually followed by a substantial reaction.

While there was considerable talk in business circles of "turning the corner" during the midsummer quiet of a year ago, it is now widely recognized that corners are not taken on two wheels in periods of major depression, but that turns in such times are negotiated by the business caravan with much backing and stalling and general confusion.

Many observers feel that no real turn will be made at this time without stability of commodity prices, and the abrupt reactions in wheat, cotton and copper this week have been a little discouraging. Most commodity price indices showed steady improvement throughout the major part of June and early July. There has been a substantial setback late this week, but it is too early to reach any conclusion as to whether it represents anything more than a temporary interruption.

Burden of Surplus Stocks.

In any case the huge burdens on world markets of unconsumed stocks of such commodities as wheat, copper and petroleum can not be lifted overnight. The Government estimate of the wheat crop, showing a large gain in the winter crop, more than offsetting the shrinkage in spring wheat, was something of a surprise, but it is more than balanced by sharp shrinkage of the Canadian crop.

Copper statistics, showing a gain of over 114,000 tons in refined stocks for June, despite the flurry of buying late in the month, was anticipated by the abrupt flop from the 9-cent-a-pound price back to 8 cents.

Further sharp cuts in crude oil prices, both in the Midcontinent and Texas, brought fresh hope that at last real progress toward stemming the flood of oil may be made. A movement for a complete shutdown was started in Oklahoma. Gov. Sterling of Texas has called a special session of the Legislature to enact laws to put teeth in the proration plan for the huge East Texas pool.

Sugar Prices Harden.

The promise of the Chadbourne plan to relieve the sugar industry has given raw material producers considerable hope. Sugar prices have hardened since the plan became effective, and it is notable that one of the large statistical agencies, long bearish on that commodity, now looks for slow but steady improvement.

In the steel industry, several plants that were shut down over the Independence Day week-end, have resumed operations. Operations were estimated during the past week at a little nearer the 30 per cent level than before the shutdown.

However, an important change is not expected during the next few weeks. The United States Steel Corporation reported a shrinkage of more than 140,000 tons in unfilled business during June, despite the low level of operations. This shrinkage, calculated on a percentage basis, is larger than seasonal, and was larger than expected.

TRADE BANK URGED FOR LATIN AMERICA

Engineering Publication's Head Suggests Plan for Credit Aid to Countries.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Wallace Thompson, editor of Ingenieria International (International Engineering), urges formation of a foreign trade bank to carry Latin-American commercial credits, as a means of extending aid to Latin-American countries.

In a monthly confidential bulletin on Latin-American affairs, which Mr. Thompson made public today, he said the problem of extending aid to Latin America in the present financial crisis must be met through help to Latin-American trade rather than to governments.

The proposed bank would be an "intermediate" institution, between the commercial bank and the investment house, handling foreign trade commercial paper on a long-term basis. Its funds would be raised by the selling of debentures against portfolios of commercial paper. Mr. Thompson feels that the Federal Government should call a conference to further such a plan, and has presented his suggestion to President Hoover.

Mr. Thompson spoke hopefully of the prospect that arrangements might be made whereby the Federal Reserve banks could discount commercial paper of some of the Latin-American central banks, but felt that there is great need of extending longer term commercial credits than is possible through the ordinary 90-day commercial paper.

"Today's great need," he said, "and the need for future expansion of our foreign trade, is long-term credits of a bankable nature, something that does not exist today in this country, but which European manufacturers * * * can command in times of tight credit like the present."

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Cottons win favor with Paris for sports and spectator sports.

And this straight slim model is just about perfect. Of course, it plaits its skirt, so youthfully smart. They are laid in kilted effect either side forming front and back panel that gives charming height to the figure.

A printed batiste in red and white made the original. The guimpe yoke and cap sleeves lend a very dainty effect in sheer white organdie with striking contrast in red button trim.

Style No. 616 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. The 36-inch size requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with ⅛ yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Another lovely idea is pale aqua-blue cotton mesh.

Pink piqua, white tub silk and yellow shantung are most attractive.

ENVOYS ARE GUESTS AT ELYSEES PALACE

French President and Wife Are Hosts at Tea at Paris Home.

Special Cable to The Washington Post.

Paris, July 12.—Climaxing a series of receptions and honors from the people and officials of France, the "Envoys of Friendship," a group of young Americans visiting France under the auspices of the United States Flag Association, were guests at a tea given in their honor this afternoon by the President of France and Mme. Carl Doumer at the Palace Elysees, the "White House" of France. The "envoys" were accompanied to the palace by Col. James A. Moss, president general of the Flag Association, and Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, honorary chaperon.

This was the first public appearance of Mme. Doumer at any function since the election of her distinguished husband as head of the French republic recently, and the reception and tea is said to have set a precedent, this being the first time an unofficial group has been entertained at the palace. Following the tea, the President and Mme. Doumer conducted the young Americans through the palace answering many questions asked by the eager youngsters.

President Doumer has been greatly interested in the mission of the "envoys," who bring a message of good will from the children of America to the children of France. President Doumer has expressed the hope that a similar group of French children can be sent to the United States next year.

Col. Moss in outlining the ideals of the United States Flag Association to President Doumer, told of the plan to establish permanent peace in the future through cementing friendship among the children of today. He told the French President of the reception given the "envoys" in England by the Prince of Wales and distinguished British statesmen, and of the plan there to have a group of British children return the visit next year.

Col. Moss expressed the hope that the British and French groups could be sent to the United States simultaneously, and promised the services of the United States Flag Association in arranging a tour for such groups. He felt that an informal triple alliance, such as would be formed by the visit of two such groups and the children of the United States who would welcome them, would go far toward establishment of permanent peace.

The "envoys" attended church services this morning and rested most of the balance of the day, the engagement at the palace being the only one accepted.

LITTLE RAIL EFFECT ON CONSUMER SEEN

Raise in Rates to Come Up for Hearing Wednesday Before I. C. C.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Prices to the consumer would be only slightly affected by the proposed 15 per cent increase in railroad freight rates, said an analysis of the railroad revenue situation issued today by the Security Owners Association through Milton W. Harrison, president.

The emergency rate plea of the roads will come up for hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission Wednesday.

Using the 1930 average freight rates as a base, the analysis, entitled "The Truth About Rails," said present freight charges on butter would be increased approximately a sixth of a cent a pound by the proposed new rates, eggs a fifth of a cent a pound, flour 1 4-5 cents a sack, sugar 6 cents a hundred pounds, potatoes, 4½ cents a bushel, wheat and corn 1 7-10 cents a bushel, cattle and hogs, 4 2-5 cents a hundred pounds, wool 11 cents a hundred, cotton 9 cents a hundred, coal 34 cents a ton, coke 30 cents a ton, iron ore 17 cents a ton, gravel, sand and stone 13 cents a ton, cement, 1 4-5 cents a sack, brick 60 cents a thousand.

"The proposed freight increases in many cases would be less than the day-to-day or week-to-week fluctuations in retail prices," Mr. Harrison said. "Freight charges represent only a small part of the price paid for a commodity by the consumer, and the direct effect of the 15 per cent advance in rates would be relatively insignificant so far as retail commodity prices are concerned."

The analysis said that under present conditions the railroads are engaged in a profitless merchandising of transportation service, and an advance in rates would not only correct this situation in the railroad industry, but would go a long way toward stimulating other industries through increased orders for materials and supplies.

Young's Rum View Sought by Women

Democratic League Writes Inquiry on Support of Dry Law.

(Associated Press.)

The National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League yesterday inquired of Owen D. Young his attitude toward prohibition.

In a letter addressed to Mr. Young, as "a Democratic presidential possibility," Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, league president, sought to learn if he would support the eighteenth amendment.

"Since you are being constantly mentioned as a Democratic presidential possibility," the letter said, "and the only chance the Democrats will have of electing their candidate in 1932 would be to put a dry against a dry, our organization would greatly appreciate a statement from you as to whether you are in favor of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution and if you would help to keep it there should you be the standard bearer of the Democratic party."

the sidelines themselves, which left Richards stranded helplessly at the net.

Richards appeared tired after his strenuous doubles match late yesterday afternoon, in the semifinals of that phase of play where he and Howard Kinsey had to go 60 games to defeat Karel Kozeluh and Albert Burke.

	A.	P.	O.	N.	D.
Tilden	14	27	23	25	3
Richards	4	19	19	38	3

A crowd of between 5,000 and 6,000 persons watched the match, which was played under ideal tennis conditions—a warm sun, little wind and dry fast turf.

Richards got a measure of revenge in the doubles, pairing with Howard Kinsey, of California, to defeat Tilden and his Davis Cup and Wimbledon partner, Francis T. Hunter in the finals of the doubles 7—9, 7—5, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3.

Richards was limping after the second set the result of a hard fall he suffered in the sixth game of the final set of the singles, and Kinsey had to do most of the running for them. Richards, staying at the net, volleyed superbly and directed the play.

Tilden was playing in fine form also, but Hunter was erratic and his errors at crucial points of the match decided the issue.

Richards and Kinsey were the defending champions.

Reds Win Over Pirates By 14-7 and 6-5 Scores

Cincinnati, July 12 (A.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds opened a long home stand today by taking both games of a double-header from Pittsburgh, winning a free-hitting game, 14 to 7, in the first, and taking a tight pitchers' battle, 6 to 5, in 11 innings in the nightcap.

The Reds had a walkaway in the first, but Rixey and Osborn held the hitters down for seven innings in the last game. The Pirates pounced on Rixey for two runs in the eighth, and drove him from the hill. They tied the count off Si Johnson in the ninth.

Barnes Wins Singles Illinois Tennis Title

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Smashing cross-court drives to the base line and outwitting his opponent with clever chop shots, Bruce Barnes, sandy-haired Austin, Tex., youngster, proved his supremacy over Clayton "Ted" Burwell, Charlotte, N. C., star when he rallied to defeat him 3—6, 6—1, 7—5, 6—2 today in the finals of the Illinois State tennis championships.

In the opening set Barnes found difficulty in pulling his strokes into the court while Burwell's brilliant net-playing repeatedly caught him off guard. After losing the set, however, the Texan tightened up and displayed fine tennis to take the next three sets and the match. Faltering only once in the third set, Barnes found comparatively easy going from then on.

Barnes and Karl Kamrath, his fellow barnstormer from Austin, Tex., national intercollegiate doubles champions, defeated a Chicago team composed of Louis Thalheimer and Jack Harris, 6—0, 6—1, 4—6, 6—0, in the final round of the men's doubles.

White Sox Rally Earns Even Break With Tribe

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Rallying in the late innings of Brown and Harder, the White Sox earned an even break with Cleveland Indians by taking the second game this afternoon. The Indians won the opener, 10 to 4, while Chicago captured the nightcap by a 7-to-5 count. Wes Ferrell had little trouble winning his twelfth victory of the season in the first contest, his mates pounding Caraway and Moore for eight runs in the first two innings. From then on Ferrell breezed through, although the Hose got twelve hits off him. Morgan led the Cleveland attack with four hits, while every player in the line-up got at least one blow.

Cleveland took a four-run lead in the second game off McKain in the first inning, but Frasier and Caraway stopped them after that. Brown began to weaken in the fifth and was knocked out in the sixth. Harder was no improvement, however, and the Sox took the lead by scoring three in the seventh. Blue and Appling got three hits each to lead the winners' attack. Caraway, the losing pitcher in the opener, received credit for the final victory.

Yeomans New District Net Champion

Mangan Defeated in Finals, 6-2, 7-5, 6-1, at Columbia.

Working on the premise that one is not likely to lose a tennis match if one does not miss a tennis ball, Eddie Yeomans yesterday afternoon became the forty-fourth District of Columbia tennis champion, eradicating, in the final round, the veteran Tom Mangan by the score of 6—2, 7—5, 6—1. Five hundred fans at Columbia Country Club witnessed the match, and found it possible to do so without adopting anything but a stoical front.

Yeomans beat Mangan decisively at every turn, with a single intensity of purpose that bordered on robotism. He was content for Mangan to do anything he please—his own game was good enough for him and he was winning with it.

Yeomans hardly hit two hard balls during the match. His shots floated over the barrier, usually clearing it by a wide margin and landing comfortably safe within the lines. Mangan might drive to any corner, might hit short shots or deep ones, might volley or smash or take the ball on the pick-up, but the answer was always the same, slightly exasperating return, harmless enough in itself, but potent in that it never failed.

Mangan beat himself from start to finish. It was he who missed to end the numberless rallies of the match. It was he who got off on the wrong foot and was coaxed into error after error by the elusively soft shots of Yeomans. The tall somber University of North Carolina graduate, emulating the example set by his colleague, Bryan Grant, slow-balled his man to death and ended the match seeming as fresh as though he had been reclining in one of the many-colored lounging chairs encircling the court.

Mangan took the bit in his teeth only once and during that period of several minutes gave the spectators their solitary excuse to applaud.

The occasion was the second set, with Yeomans leading at 5—3, after romping through the first with ease. Pouncing on the knuckle balls Yeomans was sending over, Mangan lashed out in fierce style to tie the score at 5—5. He rammed his shots into the corners with all the brawn of his wide back and heavy hips. Yeomans' coolness in demeanor and stroke production was for the moment rumpled, but when Mangan dropped his own service in the eleventh game, it became only a matter of time before the name of the new District champion was definitely known.

Yeomans, who is 21 years old and who will enter Harvard Law School in September, was presented the Dumbarton Bowl, a massive sterling affair placed in competition in 1928. It must be won three times for permanent possession, and, if Yeomans cares, he seems capable of winning it outright on just such an afternoon as yesterday, 1933.

Mangan and Yeomans will face on opposite sides of the net again today, as Mangan teams with Bob Considine and Yeomans with Bud Markey to fight out the finals of the doubles championship. This match will start at 3:30 o'clock at Columbia. Mangan and Considine are the defending champions, and have never been beaten in the Middle Atlantic section of the country, but are not odds-on favorites to continue that streak today.

100 NINES IN TOURNEY.

More than 100 teams entered the 1931 State championship tournament of the Oklahoma Baseball federation.

ON THE SIDELINES

by BRIAN BELL

STEADILY and surely, Frank Wykoff is accumulating all the important records for the 100-yard dash and thereabouts. This University of Southern California lad lacks but one claim to all marks of the first water, and this is the 100-meter dash, which he has not run since the 1928 Olympic games.

Wykoff has run fifteen competitive races this season at 100 yards, winning all of them. His marks include four dashes in 9.5 seconds, tying the existing world's record held by Eddie Tolan. Seven of his trips to the tape were negotiated in 9.6, two in 9.7, one in 9.8 and one in 10 seconds flat.

During these tours Wykoff annexed the National intercollegiate title at Chicago, the I. C. A. A. A. A. at Philadelphia, and the National A. A. U. at Lincoln, Nebr., to become the record holder of each classic.

As it now stands, he has an application for the world's record at 9.4, set twice last year, in addition to this year's crop of records.

During this campaign, the curly headed speedster has defeated every great sprinter on the North American continent, including Percy Williams, the Canadian who won the 1928 Olympic games sprints and Tolan. He has been beaten at the distance only once in two seasons and that was by Hec Dyer, of Stanford. Frankie later decisively wiped out that defeat.

The Trojan now stands without question as the chief hope of the United States to regain the 100-meter sprint title, and should he decide to branch out into the 200-meter class he would make a strong bid for that crown as well.

STRIB SHOULD QUIT.

Friends of W. L. Stribling, jr., were sorry to hear that he said "Why quit?" after his defeat by Max Schmeling at Cleveland. The answer ir Stribling's case seems to be: "Why continue?"

The pleasant young Georgian has been in more than 275 fights and over the long stretch of milling he has escaped injury. He has all the wealth he will need. Although doubtless he is not asking for advice, he has many friends who hope that he will turn his back on the fickle boxing game before he runs some day into a blow that will prevent his enjoyment of his motors, airplanes and big plantation in the South.

His courageous fight against the rugged, persevering Schmeling won him many friends, and he never can be charged with any lack of heart. If he is as smart as many think he is, he will take a tip from James Joseph Tunney and engage in the rest of his boxing from a ringside seat.

Gene Tunney knew whereof he spoke when he remarked at the Scott-Sharkey fight at Miami Beach last year:

"It's far more comfortable out here than in there," with a gesture toward the ring, as he watched the antics of the Briton and the Boston gob, from a seat just behind the press row.

BARRY AND SCHWARTZ CLASH AT FT. WASHINGTON TONIGHT

Bout Feature Of Fistic Program

First Clash Resulted in Draw; Capacity Crowd Expected.

Strickler and Finazzo Clash in Semifinals; 3 Other Bouts.

By JACK ESPEY.

WITH a record for the season in prospect, Reds Barry, promising Mohawk Club light-heavyweight, meets Baker Boy Billy Schwartz, of Alexandria, in the eight-round feature of a card of five bouts tonight at Fort Washington, Md.. A heavy advance sale indicates that more than 3,000 will fill the arena to capacity. The first clash starts at 8:30.

Barry and Schwartz are renewing a struggle that ended in a draw last year at the fort. Southeast fans are solidly behind Barry and are betting he will win, offering odds of 7 to 5. Schwartz, however, has his backers, who look for him to score a knockout.

The dope seems to point to some sort of a decision. Both boys are improved over their 1930 form and Schwartz has developed power in his right hand punches. If he connects squarely Barry may go down and out. Barry does not pack the wallop of his rival but is a better boxer and has more speed. So it looks as if it will be a decision if Barry wins and a kayo if the German Baker comes through.

Strickler to Meet Finazzo.

The supporting card lists an attractive semifinal, scheduled to go eight rounds, between Billy Strickler, local southpaw light heavyweight, and Joe Finazzo, of Baltimore. Strickler is making his return to action after a nine months' lay-off and faces a sturdy opponent who is as willing to punch as himself.

Finazzo last month lost to Barry but made a good impression with his tireless boring-in tactics. Tonight he will find instead of a shifty foe an artist of the slam-bang style. Strickler is angling for a crack at the winner of the feature bout, but he must dispose of Finazzo in order to strengthen his bid.

Virginia Marksmen Point for "Nationals"

Winchester, Va., July 12.—Scores made by the Virginia team members at the annual tournament of the State Trapshooting Association here recently in qualifying the Grand American handicap championship tournament at Vandalia, Ohio, August 24-29, were the highest reported to the American Trapshooting Association, according to word received here today from John Brandt, manager of the governnig body of registered target shooting. He predicted that when the State team race is staged at Vandalia during the Grand American handicap the Virginia squad is expected to cut a figure in the event.

R. L. Bell, of Norfolk, who incidentally had not done much shooting the past two years, won the State singles title with 196, and as a member of the squad L. E. Lowry, Burke; T. J. O'Connor, Norfolk, and F. W. Pingley, Winchester, all had scores of 196 in qualifying for the team. M. H. Harrison, jr., Harrisonburg, was the lowest qualifier with 195.

The State singles championship brought out a real duel between Bell, the ultimate winner, and Lowry. They scored 196, and in the first shoot-off each broke 25. Then they tied with 24 on the second shoot-off, while in the third Bell broke 24 to 23 for Lowry. Lowry came through in the handicap championship to win the title with 96 out of 100 from the 21-yard line.

F. F. Candler, Roanoke, won the doubles title with 47 out of 50. W. F. Anderson, Gore, annexed the all-round and high-over championships.

All of the winners have been officially qualified to represent Virginia in the special events during the coming Grand American handicap tournament.

FIGHTS REDS BARRY TONIGHT

"Baker Boy" Billy Schwartz, of Alexandria, who renews his old feud tonight with Reds Barry, star light-heavyweight of the Mohawk Club, in the 8-round feature of the Fort Washington A. Curtiss Wins From Belshe In Finals for Tribal Bowl

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE final round of the fifth annual competition for the Tribal Bowl, 36 holes, match play, at the Indian Spring Club yesterday, resulted in a victory for W. Byrn Curtiss, who defeated Thomas M. Belshe in the final round, 5 and 3. The trophy has been won since 1927 by Tom Moore, Norman B. Frost, Leroy D. Sasscer and Dr. L. S. O'Tell, in the order named.

At the end of the first round of eighteen holes Curtiss was eight up on his opponent. This overwhelming lead was due to his remarkable playing of the second nine, one under par, his score being 4-4-3-2-3-4-5-4-5, and his card for the eighteen holes aggregating 74, only three over par. This was a pace entirely too swift for Belshe, who made a gallant but ineffectual struggle by winning the tenth and eleventh and chipping into the cup on the thirteenth for a birdie. On the fifteenth, however, Curtiss secured a birdie 4 and this ended the match.

The women's tournament on the course of the Soldiers' Home Club, as the guests of Mrs. Parker West, will be played on Tuesday, the 21st, and not tomorrow, as erroneously published. All the contestants are requested to report at the residence of Mrs. West and to bring their lunches for an al fresco entertainment.

At the Woodmont Club yesterday the program consisted of a four-ball aggregate score, medal play competition, with handicap allowance. The winners were Leopold V. Freudberg, 87, and Henry Kaufman, 89, total 176, less 32 handicap, net 144. The runners-up were S. W. Straus, 98, and H. M. Shapiro, 93, total 194, less 47 handicap, net 147. The third prize winners were Jack Shulman, 103, and L. E. Harris, 89, total 192, less 43 handicap, net 149.

An event scheduled as a "Woof and Woo" tournament was on the program yesterday at the Manor Club, B. C. Hartig, with a card of 89—20—69, was the winner, and C. W. Schafer, 84—14—70, was runner-up. The third prize was won by J. M. Riley with 95—22—73.

A meeting of the board of governors of the Bannockburn Golf Club has been called for next Thursday night and will be followed on Friday night by a meeting of the members of the club At the latter meeting the attitude of the creditors of the club will be fully discussed, with especial reference to the threatened filing of a suit to secure to these creditors their equity in the property.

The Scotch foursome scheduled for yesterday on the course of the Argyle Club was postponed owing to the lack of entries.

Rhode Island Net Title Won by Keith Gledhill

Providence, R. I., July 12 (A.P.).—Keith Gledhill, of Santa Barbara, Calif., defeated his doubles mate, Ellsworth Vines, of Pasadena, in the final of the Rhode Island singles tennis championship on the turf courts at Agawam Hunt here today. The scores were 7-5, 6-3, 6-0.

Vines defeated Gledhill in the final of the recent national clay court championship at St. Louis.

During the 27 games of the match today Gledhill earned only thirteen points while gaining 97 on errors by Vines. For his own part, Vines gained 26 earned points but they came a long way from offsetting the large number of nets, outs and double faults.

Gledhill succeeds Eddie Jacobs, of Baltimore, as State champion and earns his first leg on the new Agawam Hunt trophy. Jacobs gained a leg on it a year ago, its first year in competition.

In the final of the mixed doubles Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, and Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, scored a 6—1, 6—1 victory over Miss Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., and Gledhill.

CHERRYDALE WINS EASILY.

Cherrydale took the measure of the Rambler nine yesterday on the former's diamond by a score of 13 to 4. Williams and O'Meara shone for the winners.

NATS BEATEN, 10-4; ERRORS AID YANKS

tributing another error and Hadley tossing in a walk for good measure. Fischer then rushed in before a man was out and pitched hitless ball.

Hargrave's opening hit was wasted in the home half. He hit for Fischer and this brought Masters to the hill to get his second major league chance. The former Penn collegian granted but two hits in the two frames he toiled and showed plenty of nerve by pulling out of a bad hole in the eighth, when the aisles were packed with two out, due to walks.

With two gone in the eighth, Harris tripled and Bluege doubled and this proved to be the last run of the game, although a two-bagger off Hargrave's bat was wasted in the ninth.

CANZONERI 2-1 CHOICE TONIGHT

Risks Junior Welterweight Crown in Payne Bout.

LOS ANGELES, July 12 (A.P.).—Tony Canzoneri the Confident, a double champion, and his challenger for the junior welterweight title of the world, Cecil Payne, today put behind the toil of training for their ten-round bout at Wrigley Field tomorrow.

Payne, the wild-swinging Kentuckian, turned his back on Soper's ranch high in the Ojai Hills north of here for the first time in a month, while the New York Italian terminated only a week of local preparation. In spite of this, the former featherweight king and present junior welterweight and lightweight champion, reigned favorite at 2-to-1 odds, although the scrap is fortified by two other ten-round bouts and a four-round curtain raiser, prospects for a financial success appeared none too certain, the ticket sale being reported at about $12,000.

Payne will weight tomorrow afternoon at 136 pounds or more in keeping with the agreement not to put Canzoneri's lightweight title at stake. The champion despite the fact that he has worked rather light is expected to do no better than 131, a pound under the weight which won for him the synthetic crown from Kid Berg at Chicago this spring.

It will be the second meeting of he pair, Canzoneri with no title to his name at the time, soundly beat Payne in Detroit in 1929, scoring two knockdowns to take a ten-round decision.

The unorthodox Kentuckian with his loping rights and lefts recently scored a decisive victory over Todd Morgan, former junior lightweight champion of the world. He has taken the fight with the former New Orleans Italian seriously and is not without supporters who believe his improvement has been sufficient in two years to give Canzoneri much trouble.

In the feature semi-wind up Tommy Hermann, Chicago welterweight will match ring prowess with slugging Billy Townsend, the blonde youth from Vancouver, B. C.

Goldie Hess, Rendondo Beach, Calif., lightweight, meets Bobby Pacho, Yuma, Ariz., Mexican, in the other ten-round bout of the evening.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

AS A result of a little argument with a tiger, Mable Stark, animal trainer, had to have 1,500 stitches taken in her body and, Strange As It Seems, she not only lived to tell the tale, but is back again training tigers!

Miss Stark started to train tigers some fourteen years ago, and to date she has "broken" 74 of the beasts. During this time she has come in close contact many times with their sharp teet and claws. A tussle with a tiger twelve years ago almost resulted in her death. While training a large animal in winter quarters he suddenly broke loose, leaped through the air and struck her full in the face. As Miss Stark fell the the tiger clawed at her viciously, tearing the flesh from her hands. She was saved in this instance by the whips of her helpers. Incidents such as these occur every once in a while, but Miss Stark, who is a capable trainer, says they are to be expected. Besides, tigers are not all bad. Most of them are quick to learn and are very capable actors.

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE third week at the Arlington Park course gets under way today with a program of eight races, which will be featured by a seven-furlong sprint, an allowance affair, bringing together a field of six high class equines to contest the $1,600 purse. A two-mile steeplechase event, second on the card, attracted seven steady fencers to battle it out, in the secondary feature.

On recent form, JOEY BIBB, sterling colt in the C. C. Van Meter stable, appears admirably placed in the seven furlongs of the feature. This fast stepping son of Chatterton scored easily in his last attempt at one mile. The opposition in this event is inferior and he should carry the Van Meter colors to victory. WEIDELEEN showed vast improvement recently and off that performance should force the pace. OUTBOUND, from the Mrs. J. D. Hertz stable, finished second to Neverfade at six furlongs, but may falter at the route here. However the Hertz 3-year-old should last to gain the minor award.

NAT CLYMAN, bold jumper in the McKinney string, to be ridden by his capable owner has a slight edge over six rivals in the two miles of the Mission Valley Steeplechase. TOD SLOAN has raced consistently in recent efforts and figures to finish in the runner-up position. QUEEN'S PAL fenced well in her last start and should get into the money.

FIRST RACE—Fifteen maiden juveniles will face the barrier in the five and a half furlongs of the opener. KOSTER MAID turned in a sparkling race last start when she finished second to French Honey, after getting away poorly. With an energetic ride, the G. Watkins youngster is favored to graduate. ZINA has trained briskly and may furnish the opposition with LINGUIST in the W. R. Coe string as the show possibility.

THIRD RACE—MASKED BALL showed plenty of speed in her last winning effort to gain the decision at six furlongs in 1:11. At the same distance in the third event, which brings together 14 platers, the W. R. Coe filly rates the call. G. W. Foreman's NED O. is attaining his best form and in this company may prove troublesome. CHEERS faltered at one mile the other day after setting a fast pace. In this sprint the C. E. Davison color bearer will be difficult to keep out of the money.

FOURTH RACE—Thirteen 2-year-olds will meet under allowance conditions in the five and a half furlongs of the fourth event. SAZERAC, a double winner at this track, has the speed of this band of juveniles and should annex the purse. The Audley Farm's HIGH DEVINE arrived in fit condition and rates the place call. This youngster raced well in New York, finishing second in his last and winning three previous attempts. ANUBIS displayed excellent form in his encounter with Oscillation. The Mrs. K. E. Hitt juvenile is in prime condition and may battle it out with the top two.

SIXTH RACE—In the mile of the sixth race, a limit field of 20 cheap platers will perform. MARDIE is on the improve and figures to gain the purse. BOURBON MAID has raced well in recent efforts and should furnish the opposition, with SAGE FIRE picked over the others.

SEVENTH RACE—DARK SEA, from the H. M. Woolf barn, appears best of the six 4-year-old and upward routers which will contest the mile and an eighth of the seventh number. This clever Traumer colt raced behind Knight Commander last out and previously scored over a high class field. WILLIAM T. was weakly ridden last start, but managed to finish second. With better handling, the Caskey racer should offer the opposition. WHO WIN surprised the other day with a brilliant victory over Nostaw. On that performance the J. J. Coughlin colt must be considered.

EIGHTH RACE—In the closing event at a mile and an eighth, six 3-year-old platers will parade to the post, with ILIUM as the logical choice. This W. J. Zeigler claimer will favor the route and on his second to His Last rates the call.

BETHESDA BEATS TAKOMA TWICE; SAKS WINS SECTION B

Tigers Beaten In Overtime Contests

Hoffman and Frisbie Are Pitching Heroes; Scores, 4-3, 10-4.

Grays Gain Montgomery Lead; Beat Old Colony, 18-2.

THE champion Takoma Tigers yesterday relinquished the lead to the Chevy Chase Grays in the race for the championship of the Montgomery County section of The Post's Capital City League by losing both ends of a double-header to the Bethesda Fire Department by scores of 4-3 and 10-4.

Extra innings were required to decide both contests, the first going eleven innings and the second ten. The Grays, chief contenders for the title which the Tigers have held for the past two seasons, stepped into the lead by walloping Old Colony, 18-2, in the first game of a scheduled double-header and winning the second on a forfeit when their rivals failed to place a team on the field.

Hoffman, who started on the mound for the Bethesda in the first game, held the champions to a single safety until injured in the seventh inning and removed from the game. Battle, who relieved him, was just as poisonous to the Takoma crew, granting only three hits over the remainder of the route. Bethesda, after taking a two-run lead in the early part of the game, witnessed the Tigers draw alongside in the sixth with a two-run rally and then forge to the front with an additional marker in the seventh. The winners forced over the tying marker in the ninth and then won the battle in the eleventh.

Pitchers Fail in Iron Man Roles.

Marosey, who hurled for the losers in the opening game, attempted to pull an iron-man stunt by pitching the second. He turned in a masterful performance, adn, although his offerings were combed for a total of 22 hits, he managed to keep his team in the running until the tenth inning of th enightcap. At this point the Firemen jumped on him for six runs to sew the game up. Battle also attempted to continue in the second where he had left off in the first game, but Frisbie came hurrying to his rescue when he found the going rough in the fifth inning and checked Takoma until the finish. Stevens, Hill and J. Oldfield were the batting stars in the two triumph which puts Bethesda back into the running for the flag.

"Lefty" Stevens found the Old Colony batters easy victims of his southpaw slants, and held them to a paltry three bingles while the Grays were pounding Dorsey and Tamagnu for 24 hits and 18 runs. D. Knight clouted a home run, triple, double and single in five times at bat, and in addition turned in a couple of classy, running catches in deep centerfield to make himself the hero of the game. Ferrari also had a large share in the Chery Chase slugging.

Navy Leech Cup Squad Squad Downs Edgemoor

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 12.—The tennis team of the Edgemoor Country Club, of Bethesda, Md., proved soft pickings for the group of naval officers prepping for the annual Leech Cup matches with Army representatives, in a practice contest on the Naval Academy courts this afternoon. The Navy made a clean sweep of nine strings of singles and four doubles matches.

The naval men held a decided edge in all matches, save one of the singles, in which Don Morrison, of the Country Club, gave Lieut. R. M. Watts a tight rub, forcing the issue into three sets. Morrison started off in good shape by winning the first set, 6 to 2, and forced Lieut. Watts to show his best to take the second set, 8 to 6, but then Watts came back to take the third set, 6 to 2. Today's match was the final practice engagement for the naval men.

Announcement was made tonight of the ten officers who will carry the Navy's colors against the Army in the championship matches to be staged at Chevy Chase next Saturday, but the order in which they will take the courts has not be determined. The team includes Commander C. C. Gill, Lieut. Comdr. Godfrey, Lieuts. Redgrave, Dole, Watts, McCue and Smith; Ensigns Howard, Farrin and Huff.

The Navy men will work out on the Chevy Chase courts Wednesday and Thursday.

HOW IT BEGAN

By Russ Murphy and Ray Sensusky

KEEPING THE WOLF FROM THE DOOR
FOR CENTURIES THE WOLF HAS BEEN REGARDED AS AN ANIMAL WHICH WOULD EAT UP ALL FOOD IN SIGHT LEAVING NONE FOR OTHERS. SO IT SEEMED NATURAL TO APPLY THIS EXPRESSION TO A STRUGGLE TO AVOID POVERTY.
KING PIN
A CERTAIN OLD BOWLING GAMES A TALL PIN SET AT THE HEAD OF A TRIANGLE WAS CALLED THE KING PIN. THIS PIN WAS MOST IMPORTANT BECAUSE WHEN PROPERLY HIT IT WOULD KNOCK OVER THE OTHER PINS. WE NOW APPLY THE EXPRESSION TO THE HEAD OF AN ORGANIZATION OR MOVEMENT.
DINNER FAVORS
AT EGYPTIAN DINNERS IT WAS A FORM OF POLITENESS TO OFFER EACH GUEST A FLOWER AS A TOKEN OF FRIENDSHIP. THESE FLOWERS WERE THE FORERUNNERS OF MODERN DINNER FAVORS.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

POISON IVY TREATMENTS.

THERE seem to be some promising improvements in methods that are of interest to people subject to poison ivy. One is a way of measuring susceptibility, two are forms of treatment, and a fourth is a means of eradication of the shrub or vine.

To measure susceptibility: The poison is extracted from poison ivy with either 95 per cent alcohol or almond oil (both preparations are on the market). For the purpose of this test watery dilutions of the alcoholic extract are made. There are six of these, ranging from 1 in 5 to 1 in 500. A piece of rubber adhesive 2½ inches square is cut. In the center of this is placed a piece of glazed paper ½-inch square, and on this a circle of white blotting paper ½-inch in diameter is put.

The blotting paper is saturated with the poison ivy extra, after which it is applied to the unwashed skin of the front surface of the lower arm. The tests should begin with a very dilute solution. The application is left in place for eight hours.

It is then removed and the skin thoroughly scrubbed with soap and warm water to remove all traces of the poison. The area is watched for one week, since the poison ivy eruption may be delayed for several days. If there is blister formation after the use of a 1 to 500 solution the person tested is very sensitive. Reaction after 1 to 100 indicates considerable sensitivity. After 1 to 10, very little.

The first method of treatment consists in overcoming sensitivity by the use of these alcoholic or almond oil extracts. The method has been developed to the point where it seems to offer much to those to whom the words are now a terror. The other treatment consists in applying a 10 per cent watery solution of tannic acid to the oozing, itching blister. It is applied by means of saturated gauze. But one application is made and the gauze is left on only one hour. After that, nothing is used except it be a protective covering of gauze.

Bob Becker says the best method of killing poison ivy plants is to pour a strong salt brine on the ground around the stalk of the plant. He applies the brine by means of a watering can with a small nozzle or spout. The brine must reach the roots.

Paul Potter quotes Prof. Muenscher as advising a spray composed of a solution of calcium or sodium chlorate, or a strong brine.

Close grazing done by sheep, goats or cattle will clear a pasture.

CURE BASIC TROUBLE.

K. O. writes: About six years ago I had amebiasis and trichomonas, and last summer there was a recurrence of the amebiasis. I took treatment and a test last fall revealed no germs. Last fall I had hemorrhoids and was lanced and have had no trouble since. However, for the last three months I have had itching locally. Can you tell me the cause of this and what I should do about it? It is not painful, but quite annoying.

REPLY.

Pruritis is frequently encountered as a complication of hemorrhoids. If the basic trouble is cured there is generally no difficulty in curing the complicating symptom.

IF HORSES DO NOT KICK.

H. C. W. writes: Would you please tell me if it is all right for a woman to go horseback riding after a Caesarean operation?

REPLY.

No objection to it. Somebody must ride the horses.

TONSILS AND JULY.

H. K. writes: Is it advisable to get tonsils cut out in the month of July? A person told me that it is bad to cut them out in summer and they have a tendency of growing back.

REPLY.

Hot weather is not a contraindication. Tonsils can grow back regardless of season.

LOOK INTO THINGS.

H. H. writes: Would it be harmful for a person with a nervous heart to spend the summer in Denver?

REPLY.

Probably not, though something other than altitude should be taken into consideration. Is tobacco used to excess, or coffee? Is their goiter? Is there any organic heart disease? What is the type of nerve derangement.

PARK TENNIS RUNS TRUE TO FORM

Men's, Women's Favorites Win; Play Today at Rock Creek.

THE ninth men's and the second women's public tennis courts championships continued the even tenor of their separate ways yesterday as the field in the men's event moved into the fourth round, and two rounds of play in the women's event narrowed the field to four players, all seeded.

Nothing in the way of upsets cropped up yesterday as favorites in both divisions came through in the decisive manner expected of them. Dooly Mitchell, seeded No. 1 in the men's event, routed Bob Boyd, 6—1, 6—1, while Mrs. Ruth Martinez, seeded No. 1 in the women's event, put out Alice Rose, 6—0, 6—0.

The semifinal round of the women's tournament will be played today and will bring together Mrs. Martinez and Mary Ryan at 4 o'clock, followed by Clara Tabler and Frances Walker, at 5 o'clock. This latter match is expected to prove one of the best of the tournament.

Long Matches In Men's Play.

In the men's division several marathon matches were staged, featuring players who are not expected to figure prominently in either the finals or the semifinals. The long-distance honors went to the doubles team of Hugh Trigg and Barney Welsh, which defeated the team of Knowles Blanchard and Stanley Haney, 9—7, 5—7, 9—7.

Larry Phillips and M. G. Martinez, both of whom contributed upsets in the first round, came together yesterday, Phillips winning, 7—5, 7—5.

All matches today will be played at Rock Creek.

D. C. Player's Transfer Puzzles Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., July 12.—Bernie Connell, Washington, D. C., and Emil Moscowicz, New ork, outfielder-first baseman and pitcher, respectively, of the Cumberland Colts, were paid off last night and shunted to Scranton by the local manager, Leo Mackey, and Paul Krichell, scout of the New York Yanees.

How it happened the ankees moved Connell, a player who has not been used regularly of late by Cumberland, to a Class B league club makes the local management wonder by whom and why Connell was passed on as capable of higher class baseball.

Connell has been relegated to the bench since the arrival of John Maloney, having been obtained when he was a free agent in the spring of 1930.

Moscowitz's removal makes little difference to Cumberland, it was stated, though the agreement with the New ork oAmerican League Club declares that no player shall be removed from the Cumberland Club during the playing season.

Double Derby Victory Mark for Spanish Play

Latonia, Ky., July 11 (A.P.).—Spanish Play is the only 1931 3-year-old which has won two Derbies—the Latonia and the Louisiana.

The Latonia fixture was the last major stake of the season to bear the historic appellation of "Derby."

The Knebelkamp & Morris thoroughbred was fourth in the Kentucky Derby, second in the Florida and Ohio and among the also rans in the American Derby. Th only 1931 Derbies in which he did not compete were raced outside the United States—the English, Cuban and Agua Caliente.

Winners of 1931 Derbies follow:

Kentucky, Twenty Grand; English, Cameronian; American, Mate; Latonia, Spanish Play; Louisiana, Spanish Play; Florida, Lightning Bolt; Ohio, La Carte; Cuban, Boys Howdy; Agua Caliente, Up.

COURT TO BE ASKED TO NIP MAYFLOWER RECEIVERSHIP MOVE

Efforts to Prevent Action on Reorganization in Financing to Be Charged.

CASE TO COME BEFORE JUSTICE GORDON TODAY

Subsequent Luhring Steps Form Basis of Battle; Suit to Be Urged.

Charging that demand for receiver for the Mayflower Hotel is a cloak to cover efforts to prevent a reorganization in financing the property, the Mayflower Hotel Co. and the Mayflower Hotels Corporation of America today will seek to have dismissed from the District Supreme Court the entire receivership proceedings.

The question will come before Justice Peyton Gordon on arguments on a motion filed for several second mortgage bondholders by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt before Justice Oscar H. Luhring. The plaintiffs represented by Mrs. Willebrandt told the court they own more than $10,000 worth of the bonds.

The battle has assumed spectacular aspects at times since it was inaugurated with appointment of receivers by Justice Luhring without notice to owners or operators of the hotel. Receivership was set aside by the Court of Appeals in one of the most rapid proceedings in its history as having been improvidently granted, as was contended by William E. Leahy, Edmund M. Toland and William J. Hughes, jr., counsel for the hotel companies.

Over Subsequent Action.

The battle today is over a subsequent action by Justice Luhring on request of Mrs. Willebrandt citing the two hotel companies to show cause why a receivership should not be granted.

Efforts of the plaintiffs to have the hotel put in the hands of receivers, attorneys for the hotel companies contend, have not been undertaken in the interest of the great majority of the second trust bondholders but for their "own purposes and ends." Charles C. Moore and members of his family have been back of the American Bond & Mortgage Co., which loaned $9,900,000 on the hotel after the late Allan Walker fell into difficulties and it seemed likely the project would not be completed.

Back of the fight on the Mayflower Hotel has been a fight against the operations of the Moores. The American Bond & Mortgage Co. operated throughout the country and now is in the hands of receivers and the operations of the former heads of the company is under investigation by the Department of Justice.

But the attack launched on the Mayflower Hotel is only one of six fights launched in various cities incident to the battle with the Moores, all of which have been lost by the plaintiffs, and does not justify granting a receivership for the hotel here, it is contended.

The method the plaintiffs should use to protect their interests, Justice Gordon will be told today, is to file a suit to enjoin the proposed reorganization of the hotel; financing, which was designed to protect the interests of the second mortgage bond holders, has been approved by the great majority of holders. The reorganization was not proposed in any effort to "freeze out" minority interests as was charged in the complaint asking for receivers for the hotel, it is said.

Less Than 80 Per Cent.

The $9,900,000 bonded indebtedness of the hotel, under the financing of the American Bond & Mortgage Co., was based on the estimate of competent appraisers of real estate and was represented at less than 80 per cent of the value of the property on the basis of estimates, the hotel representatives say.

The proceedings have disclosed that the bonded indebtedness on the hotel amounts to $9,557 a room, excluding the public rooms and concessions in the hotel. But counsel for the hotel companies contend that is not an unreasonable amount, and they cite the Savoy Plaza in New York with a bonded indebtedness of $21,500 a room and the Sherry Netherlands Hotel, New York, with a bonded indebtedness of $18,666.66 a room. Hotel counsel also deny that financing charges on the hotel amounted to $3,000 per room.

Operating profits made by the hotel are cited from 1925 to 1930 to show that until the depression hit the business of the hotel it was making larger and larger profits since it was opened and these profits would have justified financing plans.

For ten months in 1925 operations of the hotel netted $66,833.81 loss; but profits were shown for each year since as follows: 1926, $296,411.89; 1927, $508,847.84; 1928, $666,700.71; 1929, $780,551.68, and 1930, $602,709.89.

Zig-Zag Driver Held On Drinking Charges

Observing a motorist having trouble in deciding which side of the road to drive on while passing through Rockville during the heavy Sunday afternoon traffic yesterday, Frank Soper, newly appointed Montgomery County policeman, decided to question the man. Soper did so, and, after a short conference with the motorist, haled him to the Rockville Jail on a charge of driving while drunk.

The arrested man, who said he was Leslie M. Osborne, of Kennedy street northwest, near Thirteenth street, was said by Policeman Soper to have been driving in a "zig-zag" fashion in such a way as nearly to collide with several other cars.

Poison Victim Recovers After Rescue Squad Aid

Roy D. Smith, 28 years old, yesterday attempted suicide, police said, by swallowing a quantity of poison in his apartment on Kenyon street near Thirteenth northwest. He was treated by the fire rescue squad and removed to Emergency Hospital, where it was said his condition is not serious.

Smith refused to tell police the motive for his act.

U. S. Dredge Welatka To Leave Port Today

Huge Army Sand Sucker, Its Tasks on Potomac River Finished, Will Return to Jacksonville Harbor Duty Under Tow.

At 8 bells of the morning watch today, Skipper F. D. King and the Army's most powerful pipe-line dredge, Welatka, will shove off from the United States Engineer Wharf and head for Newport News, in tow of a Navy tug.

After eighteen months in muddy Potomac waters, the huge dredge, with a skeleton crew of 30 men, is heading for her home port. And home means Jacksonville, Fla., for Newport News is only an incidental stopover point, where repairs will be made.

With departure of the Welatka, Speedway parkers will cease to ask about the queer chugging noises that come in from the river after dark, or seek to probe the mysteries of a myriad-lighted craft that used to glitter in midchannel.

The Welatka, with the aid of the smaller dredge, Talcott, has completed the $1,200,000 job of pumping gravel from the river basin for the new Mount Vernon Memorial highway. It has been at the task since October, 1929. Now the craft will go back to its old job of keeping the Jacksonville Harbor at a uniform depth.

Capt. King, who will be on the bridge when the Welatka swings out into midchannel, has not always been skipper of the strange vessel. He was only first mate when the dredge sailed up the Potomac. He could tell, if he would, intriguing tales of the life aboard an Army dredge, where all is not work and hardship even though the pumps must be kept going 24 hours out of every 24. He could tell tales of storms in river inlets, and hurricanes in inland Florida waters that would rival any drama of typhoon at sea. Before the Welatka came to Washington a hurricane tore the ship loose from its moorings and broke one of the 23-ton "spuds" that hold it to the river basins.

J. B. Cox, senior leverman, was in command when a Post reporter went aboard last night. Cox, whose job is to stand eight hours a day at the levers and direct the suction and flow of the gravel through the 21-inch pipes that rear a bulwark of land where formerly water had been, posed at his controls for a picture.

According to Mr. Cox, life is "not at all bad" aboard an Army pipe line dredge. Though pumps are kept going day and night, the crew only works in three eight-hour shifts. After work the crew can go swimming, or "walk the pipe line" to shore, where a good time awaits any sailor.

In the 18 months the Welatka has been in Washington waters it has completed "nills" at the Railway and Highway bridges, Four-Mile Run, Gravelly Point Inlet, Roaches Run, Little Hunting Creek, Big Hunting Creek, and a special job adjoining Boiling Field.

MAN BELIEVED HURT AS HIS CAR CRASHES

Sideswipes Auto and Strikes Second Near Norbecck, Md.; Several Bruised.

One man was believed to have been seriously injured last night, and several other persons were slightly hurt, when an automobile said to have been operated by Frank Porterfield, 60 years old, of Third street near East Capital street southeast, sideswiped another machine and crashed head-on into a second while traveling on the Seventh street Pike, near Norbeck, Md..

According to Montgomery County Policeman John Butts, who investigated the accident, Porterfield, apparently severly injured, was placed in a passing car and brought to a Washington hospital. Inquires last night revealed that local hospitals carried no record of his having been treated, and police are of the opinion he was given first aid by a private physician and returned home. Occupants of the other machines as well as passengers in Porterfield's car, escaped with slight bruises.

Porterfield's automobile was forced from the road by another car which attempted to pass him, police said, and as he sought to regain the highway, he lost control and sideswiped a machine driven by Louis Pitts, of Baltimore, Md.

The Porterfield car, which was headed for Washington, careened along the road for several feet, and crashed head-on into the automobile of Varney Stiefel, of 711 Emerson street northwest. The three cars were badly damaged.

Passengers in Porterfield's machine were his son, Frank, jr., 14 years old, and W. L. Carter, of Cherrydale, Va. Those riding in the Pitts' car were James Johnson, hi swife, Mrs. Minnie Johnson and Mrs. Eva Evans, all of Baltimore. In the machine driven by Stiefel were his wife, Mrs. Ethel Stiefel, two daughters, Leona, 9 years old, and Harriet, 6 months; Althea Cooley, 12 years old, and Mrs. Joan Downer, all of this city. They were given first aid at the scene of the accident for shock and slight bruises.

Woman Visitor's Purse Stolen in Church Pew

A purse containing more than $11 and other effects was stolen from a young woman visitor to this city while she knelt in worship at St. Patrick's Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, yesterday morning.

The woman, Miss Dell Furley, of Tupelo, Miss., said a young man, who appeared to be an Italian, had sat next to her in the pew and that he left the church before she prepared to make her departure. When she looked for her purse, it was gone and she told police that she believed her fellow worshipper was responsible for the theft.

Auto and Band Parade Will Feature Carnival

A parade of gayly decorated automobiles led by three bands will pass up New Hampshire avenue northwest from that street's juncture with Rock Creek Church road, to Grant Circle, where the annual carnival of St. Gabriel's Church is being held.

The bands to engage in the evening's festivities and which will render concerts at the carnival grounds are the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the District Fire Department and the Washington Boys Independent Bands. Lee Suttell, world's champion baton-twirling drum major, will lead the Veterans Band in the parade and will perform for the carnival visitors later.

Hit-Run Automobile Injures Young Girls

Two children, Drucilla Carr, 13, and Katie Carr, 9, sisters, of 509 Florida avenue northeast, suffered lacerations of the lower legs and body contusions when a hit and run car struck them yesterday afternoon as they were crossing Florida avenue northeast, near Sixth street.

The car, said to have been occupied by three colored men, sped away without stopping, police said. The license tag numbers on the machine were furnished to the police, who broadcast a lookout for the car and the men. The girls were treated by Dr. Osborne, 706 K street northeast, and returned to their home.

OBSTACLES TO LAW RELATED BY SHELBY

Knowledge of Crimes Must Be Backed by Evidence, Says Inspector.

That there are innumerable obstacles in the path of law enforcement was the point stressed by Inspector W. S. Shelby, assistant superintendent of police, in an address to members of the Men's Bible Class of the Francis Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church South, sixteenth and Lamont streets northwest, yesterday morning.

Inspector Shelby cited several cases as examples where police were in possession of knowledge of violations, but not sufficient evidence to procure warrants.

Sergt. George M. Little, of the vice squad, also talked on crime conditions in Washington and mentioned a number of cases in which he was involved where he had absolute knowledge of facts, but was unable to obtain warratns because of lack of evidence presentable in court.

The inspector saidthat at one time he had actually seen gambling going on, but could not produce enough tangible evidence to prosecute.

PASTOR SAYS JESUS' PERSONALITY MOST ATTRACTIVE KNOWN

Rev. Burgen Cites Greater Following Today Than Ever Before.

WORLD LEADERS STUDY TEACHING FOR GUIDANCE

Pagan Lands Join Christian in Recognition, States Hamline Sermon.

In spite of all indications to the contrary, Jesus remains the most attractive personality ever to appear and his following today is larger than it has ever been, the Rev. H. W. Burgen, D. D., pastor of Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church, told his congregation yesterday in a sermon on "The Attractiveness of Jesus."

During the years of His ministry this quality was demonstrated by the crowds which followed Him on His journeys, and with the passing of the centuries He has maintained this ability to attract attention, Dr. Burgen declared.

"Christ has more worshippers today than at any time in the past, more money is being spent in this age for the building of churches than in any previous age, more books are being written about Jesus than ever before, more curiosity is expressed concerning Him than featured any other period, and more men today quarrel over Him than ever," the pastor asserted.

Jesus Influences World.

"Everywhere leaders of thought look carefully into His teachings to find a way out of the entanglements of our present-day civilization. In Christian lands as in pagan lands Jesus influences the thinking of the world, and always to the world's betterment."

Dr. Burgan said that five reasons can be given for such sustained interest in Jesus.

"His peculiar claims to Deity at once present themselves as a reason for this preeminence given him," he said. "Men looking at Him felt they beheld the heart of Eternal God.

"A second reason which grows out of the first is His optimistic attitude toward the universe. Fear played no part in the life of Christ. His confidence in God inspired trust in men toward God, and brought peace to the souls of troubled and fearful human beings.

"His paradoxical philosophy of life contributed to His attractiveness. It was so new that it intrigued men. When they accepted it they found that it worked, that it was the true philosophy for life.

His Philosophy Paradoxical.

"It was paradoxical. The meek shall inherit the earth. Let the greatest among men, if they want life's satisfactions, become servants of all. To be happy, give yourself in utter abandon to the serving of others. This was his theory of happy living and when men surrendered to it, they found joy. This is as true now as in the first century.

"His ability to bring out of men the best in them gained for Him popularity. Men want to be at their best. Only in relationship to Jesus Christ, they discover, is it possible to reach this happy goal.

"The last reason for His attractiveness was that He had and has certain word concerning death and things beyond. Death is ever in our midst. It brings its heartache as it presents its mystery. Jesus, in the face of this dreaded experience which comes to all mankind, stands with steady eye and reassuring voice as He proclaims, 'I am the Resurrection and the Life.'"

Norwegian-Danish Dispute Is Over Unpopulated Land

Barren, Ice-Choked Strip of Greenland Coast Once Supported Scattered Eskimo Inhabitants; Empty Ruins Give No Trace of Occupants.

A land once inhabited by Eskimos but now barren and ice choked most of the year—this is the segment of Greenland's east coast now the subject of a sovereignty dispute between Norway and Denmark, according to a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic Society in this city. A broad stream of ice is constantly moving southward along the entire coastline, forming an impenetrable barrier to ships for a large part of the year.

The section newly claimed by Norway—a mere patch of the long east coast between 71 dgrees 30 minutes north and 75 degrees and 40 minutes north,—lies from 300 to 700 miles north of the Arctic Circle, and is a region of deep cut inlets and high rocky islands, backed by huge glaciers which crowd down to the water's edge. The climate is subject to all the extremes of Arctic regions farther north because the polar currents carry ice masses from the Greenland Sea off Spitzbergen in a slow and steady procession throughout ten months of the year.

If Norway succeeds in its claim no new subjects will swell its population figures, for this part of Greenland is entirely uninhabited, even by Eskimos. Capt. Robert Bartlett, Arctic explorer, who visited this part of Greenland in 1929 under the auspices of the Heye Foundation, found the remains of a once flourishing village of Eskimos on Shannon Island, at the extreme northern end of Norway's claim, but the population had disappeared during the last century, leaving no clues of what became of them.

This Pompeii of the frozen north has thirty-eight ruins of stone houses in reasonably good condition, and in them were found sewing implements of women, the toys of children, and household and hunting utensils, left, apparently, as if their owners had walked out of the dwellings for only a brief absence.

The settlement on Shannon Island was first visited by Europeans in 1823. When the next record visit was made in 1870 the village had been deserted. Only a few parties of white men have been to the island since 1870. Capt. Bartlett said that this part of the coast is usually fenced off by a barrier of heavy ice 150 miles wide, and that sometimes even in summer ships can not get through to the coast. An easy passage to the shore can be found, he said, not more than once in fifty years.

The region teems in wild life and game. Both on Shannon Island and the mainland the Bartlett party found myriads of birds. Barnacle geese, gray geese, other waterfowl and numerous songbirds from Europe. Musk oxen, Arctic hares, foxes and polar bears wander along the narrow gravel beaches and rocky valleys leading up to the great Greenland Ice Cap. In midsummer the thermometer has been known to reach 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and the ground becomes so warm the musk oxen hunt patches of snow in which to sleep. These brief respites from the biting cold can not be enjoyed, however, for the swarms of large mosquitoes "that bite like dogs," Capt. Partlett reports.

The only permanent settlement of the Greenland east coast lies well below the Arctic Circle, some 800 miles south of the Norwegian claim. Angmagsalik came into the world's headlines in 1924 when it was visited by the American round-the-world fliers. Its population consists of several hundred Eskimos and a mere handful of Danes—traders, missionary, doctor and a few minor officials. In the summer a considerable column of water flows out from glacial rivers centering at Angmagsalik, which tends to make an opening in the drifting ice offshore. Then ships may push through with supplies and mail from the outside world.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE TRIAL OF THE NEW GOLF BALL.

Case of Dudley D. Duffer, Doremus Dubbem and Wingate Whiffett versus the Lighter Golf Ball:

THE plaintiffs, claiming to represent a great body of exasperated and somewhat befuddled citizens, charged the defendant with the following crimes:

1. Spoiling, disfiguring, defacing, damaging and destroying their golf game.

2. Ruining their last year's averages.

3. Impeding, blocking and shutting off all golfing progress.

4. Causing by such obstreperous and obstructive methods, a loss of sleep, contentment and happiness too great for the plaintiffs to estimate.

• • • •

MR. DUFFER was the first witness called:

Q. You are a golfer, Mr. Duffer?

A. I thought so until this season.

Q. You play the game for pleasure?

A. Not any more.

Q. Now then, do you know the defendant in this action?

A. I can never forget him.

Q. Where did you first meet him?

A. At Wykagyl Country Club.

Q. How do you place the date?

A. I made a score that will live in my memory forever.

Q. Do you charge that the defendant was responsible for this unforgettable score?

A. I certainly do.

(Cries of "You're darned tooting!" "He's dead right!" &c.).

• • • •

Q. NOW this new ball looked very much like any other ball, did it not?

A. That was the hell of it, sir.

Q. When did you first suspect that it was not like any other ball?

A. The minute I hit it.

Q. What was there in its bahavior that differed from the old ball?

A. It was ornery, stubborn and mean. It just refused to cooperate with me. It didn't seem to want to go anywhere.

Q. Now, Mr. Duffer, was this hostile attitude noticeable at all times; were there no exceptions?

A. Oh, once in a while it would give me a break, but its general attitude was one of complete defiance.

Q. What was its general conduct on the putting green?

A. Terrible.

(Shouts of "There oughta be a law!" "Tell 'em about that eleven on the fifth hole!" "Down with the United States Golf Association!" &c.)

CROSS-EXAMINATION BY BRUCE McTAVISH.

Q. Mr. DUFFER, didn't you, as a matter of fact, have just as much trouble with your golf before you ever set eyes on this defendant?

A. No, sir.

Q. I show you these score cards made out by you in the summer of 1928, of 1929 and of 1930. You will note that the totals for eighteen holes were 97, 103, 99 and 108, respectively. What golf ball were you using on these occasions?

A. (a little flushed)—I refuse to answer.

Q. On what grounds?

A. On the grounds it would incriminate and degrade me.

(At this point a recess was taken. Watch this column for the continuance of the remarkable trial tomorrow).
